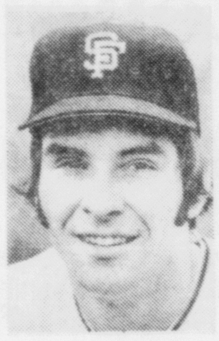
Prospect's Dave Kingman sold to Mets



Our newest addition is here — national sports coverage in the daily Herald. Beginning this morning, Herald readers will be able to keep up on the latest scores and events in national sports.

"The addition of national sports will in no way alter our priorities," said Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk.

"We will not trim our local coverage because that is where the main emphasis of our sports coverage will remain. This expanded service will strengthen our total sports package and continues our intent to give the reader the full sports story each morning."

FAA office worker shot; colleague, 57, charged

by STEVE BROWN

A mild-mannered, soft-spoken, aircraft inspector with the Federal Aviation Administration's Des Plaines office Friday pulled an automatic pistol from his desk and put four bullets into two coworkers, killing one and wounding another, while stunned employes watched in horror, police said.

The 57-year-old Bloomingdale man, Ulysses Toatley, now sits in County Jail, charged with the murder of Jay C. Sheridan, Carpentersville, and with shooting Colby Moody Jr., Elk Grove Village.

After the fatal shots struck Sheridan, Toatley stood at his desk, the gun still in his hand, police said. A startled Moody grabbed for a wastepaper basket. Placing it over his head, the man pleaded for mercy.

THE BIZARE shooting spree started just after 11 a.m. in the FAA Midwest Regional Office, 2300 E. Devon Ave., Des Plaines.

Toatley's coworkers, some still panic-stricken told authorities the two men were gunned down apparently without provocation.

Sheridan, who would have been 52 today, died of a wound in the chest. Moody was shot in the head and mouth. One shot struck Moody after he dove to the floor behind his desk hoping to avoid the bullets.

Despite his wounds, Moody struggled to his feet and pursued Toatley into the corridor of the third floor where the three men worked.

Moody scuffled with Toatley and the two men fell down a flight of steps before other FAA employes separated them. Toatley's gun, a .45-caliber automatic pistol had jammed after the four shots were fired, police said.

AFTER THE SCUFFLE, Toatley surrendered to police without resistance.

"He seemed very calm when I came on the scene," said Des Plaines Police Sgt. John Storm. "He was just standing on a landing one flight of steps below Moody." He refused to give a statement, police said.

Moody, 125 Crest Ave., Elk Grove Village, was reported in stable condition in the intensive care unit of Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. Sheridan was pro-

Diet mogul hungers for taste of politics

Weight Watchers founder starts early bid for GOP Congress seat

by BARRY SIGALE

Richard H. Cooper is to fat people what Dr. Spock is to millions of mothers across the nation.

He's the thinnest of the gurus. His spiritual leadership has caused several hundred thousand Midwesterners to lose tons of blubber, to turn their lives artound when living seemed burdensome.

Now, Cooper, 35, is shedding his role as president of Weight Watchers Inc. He is hungering for more out of life than five fruits a day and five fish meals a week. He is retiring from business to actively pursue a new career in politics.

Cooper announced Thursday afternoon his intention of entering the 1976 primary for the Republican nomination for the 10th Congressional seat held by Democrat Abner Mikva. And if it seems he is coming forward kind of early, well, he surely is.

The 180-pound Cooper (he used to weigh 230) is the latest in a long line of super-successful businessmen and people in other endeavors to say to himself:

Richard Cooper . . . positive thinking, common sense in politics

IF I CAN DO what I have been doing, spearheading a major corporation, building an empire, why can't I translate those accomplishments into votes and victory? I can then serve the public from the source of power that gets things done.

Cooper starter Weight Watchers in Chicago in 1966 on less than a shoestring. He had holes in his shoes and hocked his wife's engagement ring for capital. Things were so tough he lugged around a scale from meeting to meeting. He couldn't afford two scales.

Since then he has become a self-made multimillionaire with interests in real estate and dealings in equity financing and investment banking. You'll have to pardon him if he wants to knock-em-dead at the polls, even if he is a political novice. "I didn't get to be the man I am without knowing what's going on," he said.

He said he was convinced he should throw his hat in the ring when he heard a Nixon aide suggest that young people stay away from government work. "Somehow, that guy reached across the screen to me. I said to myself leave it to whom? What are you suggesting mister? That we leave it to people like you after going through one of the greatest crisis in the history of this country?"

The kind of politician Cooper will become cannot be labeled, he said. "What people hear at Weight Watchers, that's my label. We teach discipline, loving yourself and caring. I'm bringing the power of positive thinking to politics as well as common sense and judgment."

COOPER IS A rah-rah type guy. "I want to put spirit back into this country. With the experiences of Vietnam and Watergate there is a feeling that our judgment has been impugned as a nation. Let's pick ourselves up and dust ourselves off and move ahead. When things look the rottenest that's when things get better."

The Winnetka resident is bucking the political realities of the times. He announced his candidacy without first sounding nounced dead on arrival at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

Colleague charged with shooting FAA inspector

Five hours after the shooting, Toatley was taken before Associate Circuit Judge Francis W. Glowacki in Niles and formally charged with murder and attempted murder.

STANDING BEFORE the judge in a blood-soaked suit, Toatley mumbled only "yes sir" to a question asking if he was aware of his right to an attorney.

Assistant State's Atty. Colin Simpson said Toatley called the American Civil Liberties Union for legal advice and requested a public defender.

"Do you have any funds?" the judge asked, because a public defender usually is assigned to aid the poor only.

"I used to have a job with the FAA, but I don't expect I have one anymore after today," Toatley answered.

THE JUDGE SIGNED the formal charges and said Toatley was to be held without bond.

Simpson said Toatley is retired from the Air Force. His job with the FAA involved mechanical inspection of aircraft.

Sheridan and Moody also were inspectors, but they accompanied flight crews and checked their performance in the air.

Murder suspect 'just a loner,' puzzled fellow workers say

by STEVE BROWN

"Hell, I walked through the door with him this morning. He was the same as usual, quiet. Oh, he might have said good morning, but that was it, said a coworker of Ullysses Toatley.

Toatley was pictured by his coworkers as a quiet loner, but he erupted Friday and now stands charged with the murder of a fellow Federal Aviation Administration employe and wounding of another.

The coworker who knew the slight 57-year-old airplane inspector was still somewhat stunned by the incident as he talked.

Like other FAA employes who talked with a Herald reporter about the shooting, he said he didn't really know Toatley very well.

"He stayed to himself in the office, but I was with him on several investigations and he did a very good job," one employe said.

OTHERS SAID Toatley seldom talked with people around the office. Most people had trouble remembering how long he had been with the FAA.

"Three or four years, I guess," one man said.

"At least four years," another said.

Most coworkers were puzzled by the shooting spree. Even those who were in the office could not offer an explanation for the incident.

"There was no argument," one worker said. Although Jay C. Sheridan, 31, the dead man, had a supervisory position, he was not Toatley's boss.

Once the few, brief seconds embracing the shooting had passed, Toatley became quiet again. He refused to give any statements to police.

ALTHOUGH fellow employes had to pull Toatley away from one of his victims, police who arrived on the scene at the FAA offices said he was calm.

But while Toatley was subdued, others became hysterical after seeing the two men drop before them.

Government officials issued a statement, then closed the office where the three men had worked and sent the other employes home.

"It's just hard to understand. He didn't seem to bother anyone, just a real loner," another worker said.

Arlington Heights in park vote today

Arlington Heights residents will go to the polls today to vote on a three-part "Save the Parks" referendum to raise taxes for park improvements. The referendum was recommended as a solution to the park district's financial problems. If the package is approved it will raise taxes $11.19 for a resident with a $45,000 house.

Retirement center will be built

Friendship Village, a 306-unit retirement center to be built in Schaumburg, apparently will not be affected by the recent decision not to build a hospital in the community. A spokesman for the center said the village will contain its own medical facilities and will include a "mini-hospital." Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center announced earlier this week that it has canceled plans for a hospital in Schaumburg because of the sluggish economy.

2 houses make way for lake

Two houses on Quentin Road near Algonquin Road in Palatine Township will be torn down to make way for a 125-acre lake included in the Upper Salt Creek Watershed plan. The lake will be among three basins constructed in the Palatine area by the sanitary district in the next five years.

Use of landfill to continue

The Village of Palatine will continue operating its landfill at Smith Street and Northwest Highway without a proper permit for at least another month. It will take the Illinois Pollution Control Board that long to review testimony given Friday a a public hearing on the matter. The village, which is charged with operating a solid-waste site without a permit, said Friday it "reasonably assumed" that it had received a permit.

Ford, Dems to smooth oil-tax plan confrontation

From Herald news services

President Ford and congressional Democrats, agreeing Friday on the need to find compromise solutions to the nation's problems, indicated a rollback in their confrontation on the disputed oil-import tariff increase.

Ford said he would decide during the weekend whether to suspend the remainder of the scaled tariff hikes, and there were indications that if he did so the Democrats might let stand his planned veto of their bill to kill the program.

He said he may suspend the second $1 of the tariff increase which was scheduled to take effect at midnight Saturday. His program involved three $1 monthly increases.

A suspension now would allow 60 days in which to try and reach a compromise program, Press Sec. Ron Nessen said. He said Ford would consider the prob'em during a day or so at Camp David and probably announce his decision Monday.

In other economic developments:

• Arthur M. Okun, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors under President Lyndon B. Johnson, told Congress it is becoming "ever more likely that the history books will record this episode as a depression rather than a recession."

• Economist Anna Schwartz of the National Bureau of Economic Research in New York said the Federal Reserve's failure to achieve its desired goal of 4 to 5 per cent monetary growth made the recession worse and delays recovery.

• Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns told a congressional committee the Fed had begun to quicken monetary growth to fight the recession and results "may already be under way."

• Bank of America of San Francisco and First National City Bank of New York, the nation's two largest, lowered the prime interest rate one-quarter percentage point to 8¼, the lowest in 19 months. Other banks either matched that rate or went to 8½ per cent.

The lower rate reflects sagging loan demand because of the recession and declining short-term interest rates for key government and commercial loans.

• Farm commodity prices, declining for the fourth straight month, plunged another 4 per cent in the month ended Feb. 15, the Agriculture Dept. reported Friday. The drop left average prices for raw farm products 17 per cent below a year earlier. It followed declines of 1.5 per cent in November, 3 per cent in December and 1.5 per cent in January.

• The multi-million dollar rebate program started by Chrysler Corp. 48 days ago ended Friday. But Chrysler announced it would give $200 rebates to buyers for the first three weeks of March.

• Ford Motor Co. will recall 1,375 workers who have been on indefinite layoffs and an additional 25,300 who have been idled since Feb. 21 when it reopens next week four car assembly lines and four manufacturing plants that were closed this week.

• The Navy has disclosed the possible existence of an offshore Antarctic oil field, probably larger than Alaska's gigantic North Slope discovery. The area, off Marie Byrd Land near the northern tip of Antarctica, lies between the Ross Sea and the Palmer Peninsula, which juts north below Cape Horn.

Within reach of American planes

Rebels seize two Cambodian bases

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel forces overran two key government positions within four miles of Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport Friday, putting insurgents within easy artillery range of American planes landing in a massive supply airlift.

Cambodian army Chief of Staff Gen. Sosthene Fernandez personally directed a counterattack by 300 soldiers in 54 armored personnel carriers in an attempt to regain the fallen bases of Toul Leap and Ang Sdok west of the airport, military sources said.

The sources said pro-Communist insurgents seized the bases in early morning attacks, killing five soldiers and wounding and scattering "numerous" others.

The rebels could force a halt in the American airlift redoubled two days ago if they keep control of the bases and bring up accurate artillery, the sources said.

Rebel gunners fired 21 rockets into Pochentong airport and another seven into Phnom Penh itself late Thursday and early Friday, killing one person and wounding 13 others, military sources said.

The daily rocket attacks have been relatively inaccurate, however, and have not struck U.S. supply planes landing and taking off in a daily shuttle, the sources said.

The commercial jets have been flying from Saigon about 580 tons of rice to Phnom Penh a day. Other American piloted C130s based in Thailand have been ferrying 300 tons of fuel and 900 tons of munitions daily.

U.S. officials in Saigon said there will be a rice stockpile of 75,000 tons for the Cambodian capital by April 6. They said they hope to have a five-month supply in Saigon and intend to keep the airlift going on indefinitely.

Members of an eight-man Congressional delegation touring South Vietnam said Friday they have not made up their minds whether to vote approval for President Ford's request for $300 million in aid to the Saigon government.

Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., a member of an eight-man Congressional delegation touring South Vietnam, expressed "deep concern" over the fate of 19 journalists arrested by the Saigon government on charges of being Communist agents.

"Nobody can deny that this is a police state," he said. "But who created it? This facet of the Vietnam picture will be more important in determining my vote and the reaction of the American people than $300 million for the war?"

McCloskey praised cooperation given the delegation by the U.S. embassy, but he added, "They can produce anyone I want to see including Vietnamese officials — within 20 minutes. I wonder."

Ford to ignore Sihanouk letter on U.S. aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has decided to ignore an open letter from exiled Cambodian leader Norodom Sihanouk predicting more U.S. aid would only delay the fall of Phnom Penh for a few months, a White House spokesman said Friday.

Ford and Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger have urged Congress to approve $222 million in emergency arms to aid the beleaguered Lon Nol regime, arguing that without it, the Communist-backed insurgents will overrun the national capital of Phnom Penh.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield received a cablegram from Sihanouk Thursday which predicted Phnom Penh would fall to insurgents "in the near future."

Sihanouk, a long-time acquaintance of Mansfield, asserted that no amount of funds which Congress might appropriate under the prodding of Ford could stave off the insurgent takeover of all Cambodia.

Sihanouk's cablegram also was addressed to Sen. John Sparkman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Ford says he'll run in '76, extends amnesty proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford announced Friday that he would be a candidate for President in 1976 "without any question of a doubt." He predicted a Republican victory in 1976 and said he would "do my utmost" to enact Republican platforms of 1968 and 1972.

President Ford, citing a large increase in applications to his earned reentry program for Vietnam draft resisters and military deserters, Friday ordered a final extension of the controversial program to March 31.

"I believe that many of those who have already been punished are only now learning they are eligible," Ford said in a statement.

Critics of the program, however, brushed aside Ford's extension.

Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., announced he would introduce a universal and unconditional amnesty bill in the Senate that would eliminate some of the most criticized elements of Ford's program — the requirement for alternate service and the lack of access to veterans benefits for those with less than honorable military discharges.

At the same time, a group of draft resisters, all of whom served time in federal prisons for their opposition to the war, announced they would hold a mass rally in front of the White House Saturday and said a number of them would commit civil disobedience in opposition to the Ford program and the war in Indochina.

Charles Goodell, chairman of the Presidential Clemency Board which deals with those already convicted of draft violations of AWOL offensees, said the board was "very, very pleased" with the extension.

"There will be no further extension, nor do I anticipate asking for any," he said.

Hart, in announcing his legislative intention, said Ford should be commended "for taking the first step" on the amnesty issue, but he said the program "has not been fully successful."

In legislative action, the Senate Interior Committee moved toward completion of work on a new federal strip mining bill, defeating an effort to delay restoration of abandoned mine lands.

The Senate committee action followed a vote in the House Thursday approving the bill. The House rejected most objections by President Ford when he vetoed a similar measure last December.

Also, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield conceded that difficulties have arisen in efforts to find a compromise on changing the filibuster rule.

Eight killed in two fires in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Two adults and six children, including a recently baptized baby and a mentally retarded boy, were killed Friday in separate fires, one of which apparently was started by a dinner that boiled over.

The five children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Walsh died of smoke inhalation in a fire in their two-story home in the northeast section of the city after frantic attempts to reach them failed.

The children, pronounced dead on arrival at Nazareth Hospital, were Patrick, 4 months, Peter, 3, Richard, 4, Hugh, 5, and Eileen, 6.

Raymond G. Wilson, 50, Lathine Petty, 51, and Van G. McBride, the 10-year-old retarded boy, died in a fire in their three-story home in the west Philadelphia section of the city.

The fires, which occurred within 10 minutes of each other, were believed to be accidental.

Deputy Fire Marshal Harry Knorr said the fire in the Walsh home started after the father, an electrician at Temple University, came home from second shift work and his wife, Theresa, 34, put a pot of cooking oil on the stove to cook some French fries.

Knorr said the couple fell asleep in the living room and awoke to find the kitchen ablaze after the oil apparently boiled over.

Lt. Robert Quinn, an assistant fire marshal, said the Walshes made several attempts to get upstairs to their sleeping children but were beaten back by the flames and smoke.

The Walshes were treated for shock at Nazareth Hospital where their priest, Rev. Joseph Kane, said "We just recently baptized Patrick. I've never seen anything like this before."

Fog causes 100-vehicle California crash

More than 100 vehicles slammed into one another along a fog-shrouded stretch of the Riverside Freeway in Corona, Calif., early Friday, injuring scores of persons, the California Highway Patrol reported. Nineteen persons required hospitalization. Authorities said a loaded tanker-truck rear-ended a vehicle and overturned, bursting into flames. Within ten minutes, scores of motorists slammed into the blazing wreckage, a spokesman said. There were five clusters of accidents involved, the CHP said.

Slow jury selection delays Gurney trial

It appeared Friday the plodding tempo of jury selection in the bribery-conspiracy trial of former Florida Sen. Edward J. Gurney could delay the start of testimony until the middle of next week. As the first week of the trial of the former Republican member of the Senate Watergate Committee and four co-defendants closed, 66 prospective jurors had been called into the wood-paneled courtroom for questioning by Federal Judge Ben Krentzman. So far, 42 have been dismissed.

2 plead innocent in Nixon papers case

Richard M. Nixon's former tax lawyer and a Chicago appraiser Friday pleaded innocent to conspiring to backdate a gift of official papers to get an income tax break for the former president. Los Angeles attorney Frank DeMarco Jr. and Chicago document appraiser Ralph G. Newman were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges involving the 1970 gift to the government of Nixon's vice presidential papers which Newman had valued at $576,000.

Ford to nominate Chicagoan for CAB

President Ford said Friday he intends to nominate Chicago attorney John E. Robson as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Robson is a graduate of Yale University and a close friend of White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld. He served in the Transportation Dept. in the first part of the Nixon administration, first as general counsel and then as undersecretary.

Ethiopia asks U.S. aid vs. rebels

Ethiopian government forces battling to contain the Eritrean secessionist revolt are in danger of running out of ammunition unless Washington comes to the rescue soon, military sources said Friday. American officials have made no decision on a request from the military government for $24 million worth of ammunition to replenish dwindling supplies after a month of bitter fighting around the Eritrean capital of Asmara.

Egypt approves U.S. peace approach

Egypt will stick to the American step-by-step approach to Middle East peace at this stage and will not be deflected by Palestinian opposition, Cairo government sources said Friday. But they said Egypt would not abandon its ultimate objective of an over-all settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict, and never would conclude a unilateral peace with Israel. They spelled out Egypt's position after President Anwar Sadat publicly snubbed the Palestine Liberation Organization which has condemned the U.S. peace approach.

Germans to meet ransom demands

West Berlin authorities said Friday night they will meet the first of several ransom demands made by kidnapers who have threatened to kill within three days their hostage Peter Lorenz, the Christian Democratic candidate for mayor. As a first step, they agreed to release 10 West Berliners jailed for disturbing the peace during demonstrations that followed the murder by the same group of urban guerrillas of the city's chief justice, Guenter von Drenkmann.

Elusive for almost two years, this elk came home in time for a surprise.

A member of the Chicago Zoological Society takes aim on fleeing elk.

How d'you move elk?

A new pasture and woods now is home for the legendary Elk Grove Township elk herd.

The herd was moved this week to a new clearing just east of its long-time stamping grounds along the north side of Higgins Road in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve.

Instead of galloping herdsmen running the 12-head herd through the forest or along Higgins Road, new technology and trucks made the move a tranquil occasion.

County Forest Preserve District rangers lured the eight cows and four bulls to an open pasture with food while members of Chicago Zoological Society and a veterinarian prepared to sedate them for moving.

JAMES MATTSON, supervisor for the northwest district of the Cook County Forest Preserve, said the elk recognize the trucks because they deliver grain feed throughout the winter, the animals did not run off.

The move was planned for the winter because the elk depend on the food and can be lured to open pasture with it. The elk are grazers and receive few supplementary feedings during the summer months.

Dan Laughlin, a veterinarian, and Ed Vondra, head keeper at Brookfield Zoo, worked as a team to sedate the herd for moving. They also administered an antidote when the elk were released in the new 17-acre enclosure.

A tranquilizer gun was used to shoot dart-hypodermic, loaded with an immobilizing drug, at the elk. Laughlin said the drug was used only to prevent the elk from moving and does not render them unconscious.

IN RARE INSTANCES, the effects of the drug wear off with time but in most cases an antidote must be administered for recovery, he added.

It took approximately five minutes for the elk to succumb to the drug, and that's when the forest preserve workers found out that it takes lots of pull and muscle to get a 500-to 800-pound elk on the tailgate of a lift truck.

The new pen is slightly smaller than the old enclosure but encompasses more wooded area. Approximately eight acres are woods. The old enclosure will be flooded in the spring as part of the Salt Creek Watershed.

The elk were revived minutes after being transported. The move took two days to complete.

Antidote is given by hand.

Dazed by a drug, 600-pound bull elk is loaded on truck for move to new pen.

A legendary bull returns . . .

Stories by Jerry Thomas

Curiosity may have been responsible for his return.

Whatever the reason, an elusive bull elk who has been giving forest preserve rangers the old "ta ta" for almost two years turned up in his pen the day before the herd was moved.

The bull, a handsome runaway rangers estimate weighs 700 pounds, stayed pretty close to the pen where the rest of the herd has been kept.

Rangers' efforts to catch the bull and return it to the herd have been unsuccessful, to the glee — and sometimes consternation — of residents.

Local police departments are accustomed to getting calls from bewildered motorists who complain that "an honest-to-goodness moose, elk or something like it" walked up to their autos or was sighted walking along the road.

Police say most callers immediately start assuring them that the report's not a practical joke.

THE JAYWALKER gained fame in January 1974, when he was sighted most often.

On one occasion he walked up to a Schaumburg resident's car, stopped on Higgins Road, and licked the car's fender. A surprised motorist reported the incident to the police, saying he didn't know if he was scared or amused.

Rangers said they have no idea how the bull got loose and are just as puzzled about its voluntary return to the old enclosure. He was tranquilized and moved with the rest of the herd.

One resident who asked not to be identified said he's sorry the bull returned.

"I'm sure he's safer in the enclosure, better fed and a lot less lonely. But it sure made good story telling when I could tell my friends from other towns that Elk Grove Village, where I live, is really where the elk roam."

$10,000 for Twin Groves School site OKd by parks

Buffalo Grove Park District officials this week approved $10,000 for the development of a park site at Twin Groves School, 1072 Ivy Hall Ln.

The funds will be used to install a much needed baseball diamond and football field, said Park Director Stanley Crosland. Most of the costs will be excavation and the installation of a drainage system, he said. The area will be seeded with grass and graded.

Crosland said the park site will be designed with school officials who want to increase the outdoor recreation area.

A baseball area with a steel backstop will be developed. The first phase of the project, which includes a practice infield, is expected to be completed this spring in time for baseball season, Crosland said.

The football field and final phases of the plan are expected to be completed by fall.

The project is part of the park district's regular capital improvements program. Officials consider the Twin Groves Development top priority and cited other baseball diamonds in the district in need of repair.

Jaycee park gets $2,500

The Buffalo Grove Park District is lending a hand — to the tune of $2,500 — for a Jaycee program to provide facilities at Willow Stream Park.

The Jaycees hope to develop at least four acres of the 9.6-acre site during a period of four to five years. A family-type park with barbeque grills, playground equipment, open-air shelter and other facilities is being planned.

Stanley Crosland, Buffalo Grove park director, said the $2,500 has been put in escrow to "guarantee that there is park district support in the project."

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees asked park district officials for financial help in providing facilities estimated to be $37,000.

The Jaycees plan to conduct several fund-raising projects to help pay for the development. The first part of the program, possibly to begin late next summer, is expected to cost about $10,000. Members of the organization will contribute by installing facilities.

Harper College programs

Helping seniors retain vitality

by ELEANOR RIVES

"The worst thing a person can do to an older person is eliminate his opportunity to make decisions," said Cathy LaChapelle, who finds working with senior citizens not unlike working with other minority groups.

To her new position as coordinator of Senior Citizens Programs at Harper College, Palatine, which she assumed in November, she brings with her a master's degree in adult education, many years' teaching experience, and recent involvement in an individualized basic education program for adults at a Milwaukee technical college.

"Society so often passes over a member of a minority group rather than dealing with that person individually," she said. "It's wrong to 'glomp' people together."

MRS. LaCHAPELLE'S interest in older people stems partially from her own family background. She has watched the various members of a large family group adjust to changes as their age advanced. Her mother, 77, taught until she was 70, now does volunteer work with senior citizens.

Even the term "senior citizen" bothers Cathy somewhat. She is afraid it might assist society in its attempt to stereotype seniors and to point up their deficiencies rather than their strengths.

"We all have deficiencies," she said. "They may or may not relate to aging."

But she notes with pleasure that more attention is now being given to the real problems associated with aging.

"For many years, the emphasis of society was on youth," she explained. "Suddenly, with the decline in the birth rate, we are beginning to realize that the ratio of the 'over-45s and 55s" is increasing greatly.

"EVERY PERSON knows that sometime he is going to age. We are all going to be there. Too often we don't want to face this so we ignore aging — it's just a painful reminder. But in our growth process, we begin to realize this is something that must be dealt with."

"SENIOR CITIZENS are individuals, not a stereotyped group," says Cathy LaChapelle, coordinator of Senior Citizen programs at Harper College.

Cathy LaChapelle's functon at Harper is to serve as a catalyst between the educational resources in the community and the seniors who have needs for these resources. "Tailoring the resources to fit the needs" is the way she describes it, and she intends to provide a variety of programs to as many seniors as possible.

One such program which has already proved successful at Harper is the physical reawakening course, led by Elaine Costello. It is based on the principle that as one uses his body, he enhances its function, feels more vital, and thinks better. "It's a life-giving experience, a refusal to accept deterioration," said Mrs. LaChapelle.

ANOTHER COURSE that has proved its worth to seniors is the "Expanding Horizons" program, in which one learns ways to restructure one's life because of changes that have occurred. In the series just concluded, led by Jane Jensen, the average age of those enrolled was 82.

Other educational programs might possibly include a course on good nutrition — and consequently good health, a highly recognized need among older people. A drama group could involve seniors in another enjoyable activity.

"Some elderly people just want to have fun — and that's good, too," said Cathy.

A 10-WEEK innovative course now in session at Harper is "Senior Peer Counseling," designed to teach mature adults (including seniors themselves) how to counsel elderly people who are isolated, housebound and lonely. Those who finish the course successfully will be awarded certificates and may become self-employed para-professionals or volunteers with a truly meaningful commitment.

Peer training will enable them to help the elderly continue to participate in the community, to reduce their feeling of isolation, to put them in touch with other community resources. Special training in death education will guide senior peer counselors in sitting with the terminally ill. The course in Senior Peer Counseling will be repeated May 27 to July 31.

Mrs. LaChapelle hopes to expand the Senior Citizens Program at Harper but believes she must become acquainted with the needs and desires of local seniors before announcing future plans. Services must be low cost to those participating, and so part of her job is to look for revenue sources.

"ANY SPONSORING group with funds for this purpose may work out a course or program for seniors if it is within Harper's budget restrictions and educational guidelines," she said.

Meanwhile as she is building up her knowledge of seniors' needs and finding the resources to meet those needs, she continues her efforts to dispel some of the myths about aging that are prevalent in all age groups, myths such as:

Old people are all alike. False!

Old people are rigid in their point of view. False!

Old people are no longer useful to anyone. False!

Old people are worthless. False, false, false!

"From constant feedback of such false beliefs as these, an elderly person develops a poor self-concept," said Cathy. "If he thinks to himself, 'I'm expected to be like this or to act that way,' he begins to carry it out. He must work extra hard to convince himself, 'I am valuable. Maybe I don't move as fast or think as fast, but I can move and I can think.' "

There's a good reason to restrict tranquilizer

The homeline

Dear Dorothy: A little squib in the paper has me fretting. It said the Federal Drug Administration had put restrictions on Librium, which I use. Does this mean there's something wrong with this tranquilizer? — Wilma Hoffstetter.

All the FDA has done is place restrictions on refilling of prescriptions. What is troubling the authorities is the indiscriminate use of these tranquilizers. Age-old story: People think that because something does a good job increasing the dose will do twice the good. Just follow your doctor's prescription advice and relax in peace .

Dear Dorothy: I got a shock when you wrote that the approximate cost for 17 kilowatt hours was $5 to $10. Sure, you were talking about clocks, but where did you come up with a cuckoo figure like this? — Curtis Craig.

I feel like a cuckoo myself! The Edison Electric Institute puts the average cost in the United States for 17 kilowatt hours at around 47 cents. But ding-dong though I was, I'm sure you'll still grant that, even though the battery-powered clock isn't going to solve the energy problem it's still a move in the right cycle.

Dear Dorothy: My husband carries too much change and keys in one pants pocket, and when a hole developed, I put on a piece of press-on tape and then sewed all around it to make it really secure. Sooner or later, I'll have to buy a replacement pocket, but this ought to last quite a while.—Mary Bennett.

Dear Dorothy: Chicken a la king can be such an insipid dish, I find adding two tablespoons of sherry really jazzes it up. —Marion King.

Dear Dorothy: One of the favorite desserts in our home is Creme Brulee. But the last time I made it, it turned out as a colossal failure. The brown sugar coating was all wrong. Instead of coming out a thin, crisp sheet, it burned in patches. Might there be something different in the brown sugar these days? — Mary Hibbard.

You may well have bought a sugar which had dextrose incorporated in it and there were several reports that it failed others addicted to this delicate dessert. I think that if you'll stick to the regular brands of brown sugar, you won't have the same "brown-out."

Dear Dorothy: I was about to leave the hospital, where I'd been a patient, and wondered how I was going to bring some of the lovely planters home. My smart daughter brought in a plastic laundry basket and it did a fine job. Thought others with the same problem might like to know this. — Mrs. W. G.

Bicentennial souvenirs already being offered

Collecting
with Grace Carolyn

With the ads touting all the Bicentennial offerings, many persons wonder which might be a good investment for the children, and what may be considered valuable by the collectors of the future, our great-great-and a couple more great-grandchildren in 2075.

My husband has been buying coin proof sets for our children for several years and now has done the same for the grandchildren. Collin, aged terrible two, is a numismatist and doesn't even know it. I haven't decided what Johnna, six months, will inherit in the way of collectibles. The old dolls, perhaps, but that's sex stereotyping, and I don't want to get into that.

BICENTENNIAL plates, medals, cups, bells, ingots, statuary, bottles, coins, stamps and countless other items will be offered the public during the coming year or two. Millions of these things will be bought and admired, exhibited on the mantel or bookshelf for a few years, then stored away in attics and basements (or bank vaults if they are very expensive). And some day, in a plastic bubble house or a submarine apartment, our distant progeny will wonder over the quaint and strange tastes of their forefathers.

But I'll bet on an antiques dealer lurking about, waiting to relieve them of that old stuff at a great price, strictly as a favor, of course.

Way back in 1876, on our first centennial, a grand exhibition was held on the grounds of Philadelphia's Fairmont Park. It housed artisans from all over the world, turning out examples of their native arts and crafts, all of which ere eagerly bought by enthusiastic fairgoers. My mother's mother attended the fair and collected enough souvenir ribbons woven of silk, given by the various exhibitors, to make an entire quilt which is remembered by my mother but has long since disappeared. How I would love to have that quilt, or even a portion of, framed for my wall today. We do have a little ruby glass mug, engraved with the sentiment "Forget-Me-Not," then the words "Centennial Exhibition, 1776-1876."

AMERICA AND its arts and invention were well represented at the fair. A firm called Gillinder & Son erected a glass factory on the grounds of the park and turned out thousands of inexpensive souvenirs impressed with the firm name. Glassblowers worked on the scene, fashioning novelties such as little animals and birds, and pressed glass was formed into Liberty bells, bread trays, little shoes and figurines of famous personages of frosted crystal and tableware of every sort. The pieces marked with the firm name and fair dates are very collectible today and carry quite high prices.

Besides souvenior hunting, the public got its first glimpse and sound of Alexander Graham Bell's amazing telephone and was intrigued with George Westinghouse's new fangled air brakes. And it was at this fair that the French showed a player piano. No longer did the family have to listen to the last piece little Maud had learned from her piano teacher; within 20 years thousands of families had a player piano in the parlor, with any song they cared to hear available on paper rolls. Today the player piano is back, and big, both for nostalgic entertainment and as a collector item.

THE PHILADELPHIA Exhibition continued for nine months, contained some 31,000 exhibits, employed artisans from 50 countries, and was visited by more than 10 million persons. A pretty good attendance considering that they all had to get there by foot or horse-drawn vehicle, many after a long train ride. I have heard no mention of one great Bicentennial Exhibition, but no doubt there will be many displays and smaller endeavors. Mabe at 200 we're just too old for such a grand effort, but it would have been nice.

$100,000-a-year practice traded for military life

Doctor giving it all up for Air Force

by KAREN BLECHA

Personally, Dr. Mario Del Beccaro doesn't like publicity. Not at all.

But he sits there, stethoscope around his neck, making jokes about "M*A*S*H," apparently at ease with the questions everyone is asking him these days. As long as its for the Air Force, says the Lutheran General Hospital doctor, then it's OK.

Del Beccaro, a big, brawny man who carries his medical supplies in a leather shoulder bag he jokingly calls his purse, was sworn in Thursday as a colonel in the Air Force. Soon he will give up a general practice in Niles grossing yearly about $100,000 for life at a base in Tacoma, Wash., and a salary of $44,700, including bonuses, and no retirement benefits.

WHAT EVERYONE wants to know is why.

First, Del Beccaro wants to put everyone's mind at rest about the money. He said it's not that important — when he applied to the Air Force last year the job paid only about $30,000 — and he won't be losing that much anyway.

About 50 per cent of what he grosses now, he said, goes for overhead he won't have to pay in the military. And his dollars will mean more because he gets military discounts and because he expects to work less than the 60 to 80 hours he spends on the job now.

But it's not the hours that makes him want to give up the practice. It's what he calls "the negative aspects" of practice he no longer wants to cope with. He says everyone tells doctors what to do — the state, the federal government, hospital administrators and even the patients who think they know all about medicine. And it's just getting worse.

"It's no fun anymore," said Del Beccaro, a Morton Grove resident who has been in practice for 20 years in Niles and Chicago.

"I'VE ALWAYS HAD respect for the military and military medicine," he said. "I know there will be requirements in the military but at least I'll know where they are coming from. Now they come from all over, whenever you turn around."

IT ALL STARTED as a joke last June when the doctor dropped an Air Force enlistment brochure on his receptionist's desk. On it, he had scrawled, "What have you got for a 48-year-old GP?"

He left for a Wyoming vacation the next day and the receptionist took him seriously. She mailed in the brochure and the Air Force has been after him ever since.

"I had thought about it, going back," said Del Beccaro, 49, who was in the Army as a rifleman in the Pacific during World War II and then later an intern in Hawaii during the time of the Korean War. "But I didn't think I was eligible."

Del Beccaro is eligible under an Air Force recruitment program designed to attract doctors to care for military personnel and their dependents. The program, trying to fill some 600 doctors vacancies nationwide, was started when the draft was dropped in 1973. Del Beccaro is only the third doctor from a Midwestern area with an estimated 13,000 eligible physicians to sign up for the program, said an Air Force spokesman.

DR. MARIO DEL BECCARO, on staff at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, for last 15 years and a general practitioner for 20, is giving up private practice for a pair of eagles and life in the Air Force.

THE ONLY REGRETS Del Beccaro has about signing up for at least a four-year hitch is the patients he will leave behind, some of them patients for 20 years.

"I feel like hell about leaving them," he said. "About 80 per cent of them are beautiful people. I hope to have someone else take them. But if someone doesn't, they'll have to take the same route as if I had dropped dead."

Since he made his decision, the doctor has been getting comments, both pro and con, from his colleagues. Some, who he believes envy his decision, have teased him.

"One doctor called me and all he said was 'Please send over a bucket of legs and wings and a six-pack of Coke . . . COLONEL.' "

Del Beccaro laughs about that one but other comments have not been so kind. The doctor said he has gotten some static about signing up for what some people consider the big, bad military.

"I think we need the military very much and I think they are very naive to think you can turn the other cheek and not get hit in that cheek," he said. "One can't maintain peace without being strong. You've got to be strong to be peaceful."

And he mentions he's had experience at that, being 6 feet 4 with a massive build and basically at peace.

DEL BECCARO, who picked Washington as a base because one of his four daughters is in college there and the rest of the family likes to camp, hunt and rock hound, said he hopes it won't be his last stop.

If all works out, he plans to stay with the Air Force until retirement age and hopes to travel around the world. Still, he will ask for a leave of absence from Lutheran General in Park Ridge just in case things don't work out and he chooses to come back.

Del Beccaro said his family is fully behind him in his decision but his daughters do regret one thing: that their Dad has to shave off his fuzzy, black beard.

"I don't really mind," Del Beccaro said. "Is a beard worth a crusade?"

Alexian Brothers wins accreditation

Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village has been accredited for another two years by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The accreditation is the result of an inspection of the hospital made last November by two field representatives of the joint commission.

Alexian Brothers is one of about 5,300 general hospitals throughout the country that have been accredited.

'New' women in the church

Eventual ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution apparently will be the United States' chief contribution to the observance of 1975 as International Women's Year.

But aside from the relatively placid legislative lobbying effort involved in the ERA, a new breed of feminist thinkers and activists is coming to the fore.

Nowhere is the breed more evident than in the church.

Like activists in other movements fashionable in the 1960s, the church feminists have moved beyond the flashy tactics that gain national media attention to the more obscure day-to-day organizing in their local communities.

NO ONE illustrates this new situation better than the Rev. David Foy Crabtree, a United Church of Christ minister and director of the Prudence Crandall Center for Women in New Britain, Conn.

Taking its name from a 19th-Century suffragist, educator and abolitionist, the Prudence Crandall Center works to discover the needs of women and to empower them for full participation in the aspects of community life.

That isn't easy in a town that has a heavy concentration of industry and therefore a large concentration of lower-middle and lower-class working people.

For Rev. Crabtree, ordained since 1972 and a long-time activist, coming up against that reality has meant personal readjustment of her own style.

"I've really had to try and tone myself down and that's been an interesting experience . . . to tone down to try to communicate," she said. "I really believe the women's movement is a spiritual movement, a moving of the spirit, a search after ultimate meaning."

BUT SHE SAID it is not simply neutering sexist language or replacing "brotherhood" with "sisterhood."

"Religion Today," by Lester Kinsolving, will resume next week.

"We would like to find ways for women to rise up and take control of their own lives, both physically and emotionally," she said.

The center, Rev. Crabtree noted, was currently in the process of doing an extensive "needs survey" of women in New Britain.

"One of the most interesting things about the preliminary results of that survey," she said, "was that 93 per cent of the women responding said they felt a primary need was for a woman to know how to defend herself."

IN ADDITION to the needs survey, the center also has done surveys on women in government and politics in New Britain, provides consciousness and support groups for women, provides free personal counseling and organizes task forces in the area of education, sexuality, health, religion and physical education.

The key to the future of the women's movement, she said, "is whether the women's centers in local communities can keep on going."

"It is a spiritual thing — it is so powerful that I don't think anything can stop it.

"But we have to learn how that translates into an effect women who are destitute both emotionally and physically. I'd really like to see some national denominations struggle with that."

Herald opinion

New stations? We need them!

Your local railroad station may be about to be spruced up or even rebuilt, thanks to a state plan that was designed to battle the present recession.

On Wednesday, the Illinois Dept. of Transportation announced it is ready to spend $6.8 million to improve or rebuild 114 train stations in the Chicago area. Included in the plan is a replacement station for Arlington Heights and a brand-new station at a new location in Schaumburg.

The plan hinges on the legislature's approval of Gov. Daniel Walker's $4.5 billion bond issue, designed to free funds for construction of highway, public-service and mass transit facilities.

The need for the station construction work has long been obvious to anyone familiar with the commuter railroad operations in this area, and the project underscores the legislature's need to move quickly in approving Walker's plan.

The Schaumburg station is of paramount importance to local residents who must now travel to Roselle to board Milwaukee Road trains to Chicago. The station would be constructed on a proposed extension of Springinsguth Road; it might eventually be part of the much-discussed Schaumburg transportation center, which could include the Schaumburg airfield.

In Arlington Heights, the new structure would replace an 83-year-old downtown station which has become a village landmark. This old station, however, is simply too small today for the Northwest suburban area.

However, the station should be moved to a location, perhaps in a park, where it can be preserved as an example of local history. We are often forgetful of the history of the Northwest suburbs; we owe it to our children to work to preserve this segment of it.

Also, the public should be included in designing a new station in both Schaumburg and Arlington Heights. We don't want brick-and-glass eyesores to spoil the landscape; a new station should reflect the dominant architecture of a given community, as well as that community's historical traditions.

According to state officials who proposed these plans, the changes can be completed by mid-1976, which would be good news to all rail users. The legislature can encourage such speedy construction by quickly approving Walker's bond issue plan, which is designed to provide jobs and to improve the quality of commuting in the Northwest suburbs.

Save those road maps

Those handy and free gas station highway maps are the latest American institution to suffer under the present inflationary crunch.

The Christian Science Monitor reports that oil companies are looking at smaller size maps to aid the lost traveler. Some oil companies are even charging 15 to 25 cents for certain state maps.

But the oil industry is loathe to discontinue or seriously restrict the publication of the maps, for such a cutback might reflect badly on the companies, the Monitor reports.

For the sake of all drivers, we support that reluctance; we've all been saved, at one point or another, by using the maps to find our way through alien states and neighborhoods. They continue to serve a vital motoring purpose.

Nuclear blackmail

Terrorists and homemade bombs worry arms experts

by NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON — A gang of international terrorists hijacks a shipment of plutonium being transported from a nuclear power plant to a reprocessing and storage center.

They are after a small amount — about the size of a grapefruit and weighing less than 50 pounds — of this fissionable material used in nuclear weapons.

Using the scientific knowledge now generally available, and a simple basement laboratory, they fashion a crude atomic bomb capable of producing an explosion equivalent to 100 tons of TNT.

Then the terrorists announce their demands — and hold an entire U.S. city hostage by threatening to set off an explosion.

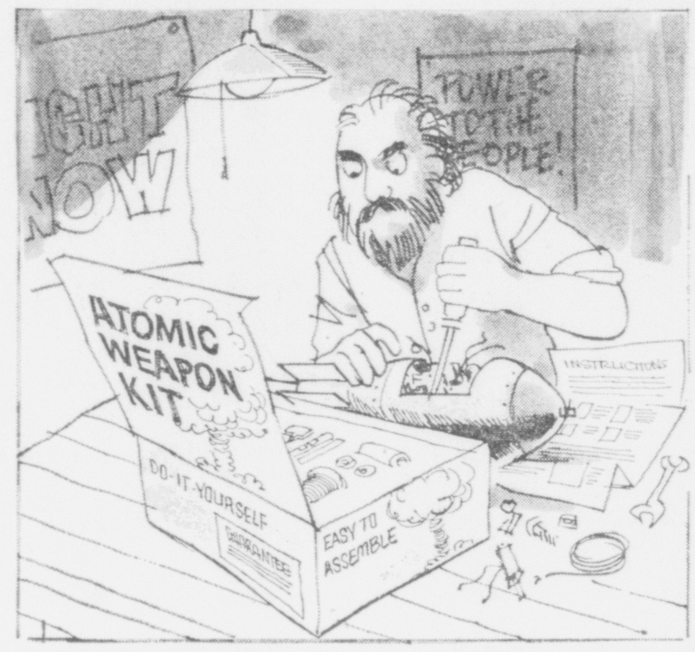
They know they have the means to kill 50,000 people instantly if they place their weapon strategically.

This is the latest scenario of disaster which is worrying nuclear specialists and arms control experts. It has not happened yet, but experts believe that it could as the world moves towards nuclear-produced energy and away from oil.

In 20 years, some experts calculate there will be enough plutonium in world transit to create 20,000 cases of misplaced shipments to cause concern.

Dr. Fred C. Ikle, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, recently took the scenario one step further in a speech to the National Security Industrial Association:

"Imagine the morning after a nuclear explosive has destroyed half of an American city," Ikle said to the representatives of defense-related industries.



"How are we going to apply our theories of mutual deterrence, or first strike and second strike, or strategic stability conceived for a bipolar world if we cannot tell whose nuclear explosive it was?"

"Or even if we could tell," he continued, "but it turntd out to be an organization such as might exist in the future — an organization perhaps with dedicated people but no clearly defined national territory — what good then would our more than 2,000 nuclear missiles and bombers do?"

Ikle was making the point that the long, and extremely complicated, efforts of the United States and Soviet Union since World War II to limit nuclear arms are being frighteningly undercut by what the specialists call "nuclear proliferation."

The United States, Soviet Union and Britain were seeking to halt the spread of nuclear weapons in 1970 when they concluded the so-called Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT). The treaty prohibits the nuclear powers from transferring nuclear materials for weapons purposes to third countries.

The treaty, which now has 83 adherents, will hold a five-year review conference in May 1975.

The conference hopes to welcome new signatories to the international accord. But assessment is likely to be disappointing:

Neither France nor Communist China, both nuclear powers, has joined the NPT.

Nor has Israel, which has the potential to turn out nuclear weapons. Nor Egypt. Nor Brazil. Nor Argentina.

Nor India, which exploded a nuclear device in May, 1974, reportedly in connection with its peaceful atomic program.

In the torturous history of arms control it seems that when one avenue to advanced weaponry is closed off, other roads are opened up.

When the 1922 Washington Naval Conference put limitations on battleships after World War I, Germany eventually developed the "pocket battleship" — a man-of-war of smaller size but more powerful armaments than the conventional battleship.

So, too, today.

After prolonged efforts, Moscow, Washington and London signed in 1963 the partial nuclear test ban treaty. This accord prohibited the testing of nuclear weapons in space, underwater or in the atmosphere.

That put a premium on underground tests. To date, the great powers have been unable to agree on a complete underground testing ban.

President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev concluded a partial underground testing ban accord at the 1974 Moscow summit conference.

They agreed both the United States and Soviet Union, beginning in 1976, would not test weapons underground whose explosive yield was more than 150 kilotons.

That is approximately seven-and-one-half times the blast which destroyed in a matter of seconds half of the city of Hiroshima on Aug. 9, 1945.

Postal Service practices defended...

Fence post
letters to the editor

In your editorial of Tuesday, Feb. 18, you suggested we give Rep. Crane's proposal of turning mail delivery over to a private concern or concerns a trial.

You pointed out his bill would remove the private express statutes that prohibit just anyone from delivering first class mail. You also claimed there are at least four major delivery systems which handle what would be classified as third and fourth class mail, "efficiently and reliably."

I, as a postal employe with 15 years of service and a real desire to give our customers a level of service as effective as possible, would like to give you another perspective on those two statements as well as several others you made.

Before we begin doling out the responsibility of delivering this country's most important and private correspondence, hadn't we better consider how it might be done? Could just anyone begin calling themselves a postal service? Would there be any Congressional control over who delivers the mail, or do we depend on "good old competition" to weed out the less dependable? Do we let these mail services just deliver in the high density urban areas where a profit can be made and forget about the thousands of small towns and rural areas that make up the predominance of this country? Perhaps we should turn the whole job over to several of our larger private corporations, such as General Motors, Standard Oil, or A.T.&T. There have been many recent examples of how sensitive they are to the public interest and their ability to hold down costs.

You mentioned four major delivery systems which handle other classes of mail reliably. The only ones that come to mind are United Parcel, which deserves all the credit it gets for urban delivery, and R.E.A. Express, which is even more limited in its deliveries. There are several companies that are attempting to deliver advertising matter in our area, but many of the mailers haven't been satisfied with their service and have returned to the Postal Service. A number of people in the Northwest suburban area that paid a thousand dollars for a franchise from these companies for "routes" are now trying to get their money back through the courts because promises made weren't kept.

You stated there are few people that remember the days of the four cent stamp. What kind of a ridiculous statement is that? It seems to me the nickel phone call, the ten-cent candy bar and the 79 cents a pound steak are also just fond memories.

You stated, despite the rising cost of postage, services have been cut, and used multiple collections and two deliveries a day as examples. As far as collections are concerned, you need go no further than your own mail box to mail your letters. They will be picked up by your letter carrier with each delivery. In business areas and on arterial streets, collections are made at least twice and more often three times daily, the last after 5 p.m. Yet no matter how hard we try to get businesses to mail early, most mail isn't deposited until the five o'clock collection.

As for two deliveries a day, this practice was eliminated in residential areas 20 years ago. Because even then, changing transportation patterns, planes and trucks rather than trains were getting the mail to the post offices through the night, so most of it was available for delivery by morning. Having the carrier retrace his steps in the afternoon with very little mail was not worth what it would have cost the postal customer.

Mr. Crane contends that private industry can do it all cheaper and make a profit as well. When I read that Chrysler Corporation lost $52 million last year, the Penn Central's threatening collapse if not subsidized by the government, and Pan Am has had to sell 15 per cent of its stock to Iran to remain in business, I wonder, Mr. Crane, I really wonder.

I'm not trying to say that the Postal Service is above criticism. In an organization as large as ours, some delayed or lost letters or damaged parcels are inevitable, despite our best efforts. If you have a complaint about your mail service, by all means call your local post office. Give us the chance to solve your problem, we can't if we don't know about it.

We in the Postal Service are working to turn around an organization that was the stepchild of the federal government for a hundred years. Most of us are striving to give every one of our customers the best service possible and most of the time we are doing it. We want the opportunity to continue trying until we can do it all the time.

...Crane applauds Herald

I read the Herald editorial of Feb. 18, "Postal Reform Deserves a Trial," with great interest.

I appreciate knowing of your support for the concept of breaking the monopoly over first class mail delivery now held by the Postal Service. I further appreciate that you wrote this editorial giving further circulation to the idea of postal reform, in order that it can contribute to a discussion of this matter within the community. It is interesting to note that even such an outspoken critic of competition in first class mail as Congressman Mo Udall seems to be coming around on this issue.

Again, I enjoyed reading your editorial and appreciate your support on this matter.

Gun precautions

Paddock failed to report the real story behind the shooting accident at Howard Johnson Sunday morning, Feb. 9.

The fact that two people were only wounded does not relieve people of their responsibilities. Does someone always have to die before people open their eyes and then take precautions?

I love guns and hunting, but to have a room full of tables with guns, clips and ammo openly on display, accessible to anyone, is asking for trouble. The village is as responsible as is anyone. There should be ordinances and regulations pertaining to gun shows so that every measure of safety is taken. Everyone was very lucky this time. My own son was standing there just prior to the shot. I only hope some eyes are opened up.

The almanac

Today is Saturday, March 1, the 60th day of 1975 with 315 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars.

The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

American singer-actress Dinah Shore was born on March 1, 1920.

On this day in history:

- In 1781, the American colonies adopted the Articles of Confederation, paving the way for a federal union.
- In 1803, Ohio became the 17th state of the Union.
- In 1932, famed flyer Charles Lindbergh's 20-month-old son was kidnaped. The boy's body was found May 12, and Bruno Hauptmann was electrocuted for the kidnap-murder in 1936.
- In 1954, five congressmen were wounded when Puerto Rican nationalists began firing from the gallery of the U.S. House of Representatives.

A thought for the day: American writer Henry David Thoreau said, "It is characteristic of wisdom not to do desperate things."

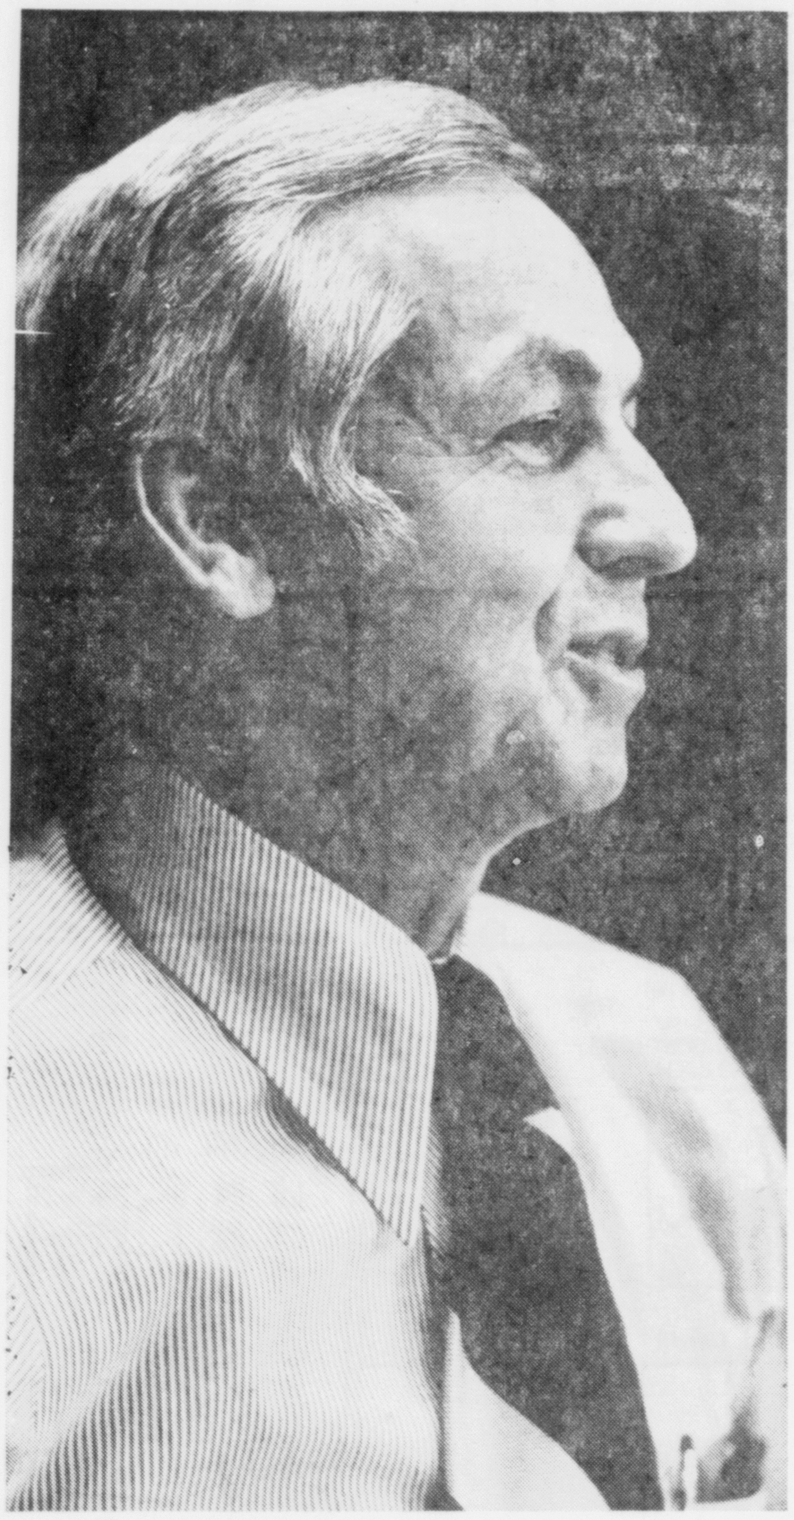
Arab blacklist doesn't faze Universal Oil



by STEVE NOVICK

"We have good working relationships and have had for years with the Saudi Arabians and we expect these good relationships to continue," said John O. Logan, president and board chairman of Universal Oil Products Co., Des Plaines.

He made the comment while answering an inquiry about whether UOP has been confronted with the Arab nation's blacklist of U.S. firms, a policy President Ford this week said he deplores.

Logan's statement is "as far as we can comment," a UOP spokesman said, adding that people will have to interpret the statement as they see it because nothing else will be said.

He would not say if UOP has been confronted with the list or if the company honors it.

THE BLACKLIST names 1,500 U.S. companies forbidden from doing business in the Arab nation. A boycott of those on the list must be adhered to by companies that wish to deal with Saudi Arabia.

UOP Management Services Inc. is currently contracted with General Petroleum and Mineral Organization to set up a new refinery near Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

The Saudi's blacklist, like those compiled by other Arab nations, is reported to include companies that do business with Israel. Another criteria is to list firms Arab officials have associated with Zionism.

Ford said the lists represent discrimination "totally contrary to the American tradition and repugnant to American principals.

UNION OIL CO., with regional offices in Schaumburg, said it has holdings in the Middle East but has never been confronted with a boycott list.

"We believe in fairness and open relationships," said William Krick, a spokesman for Union Oil's regional headquarters in Schaumburg. "We have some concessions in the Middle East. We've received concessions in recent months," he added.

Several companies with headquarters or locations in the Northwest suburbs are on the list of firms to be boycotted.

Motorola Corp., building its new headquarters building next to its communications division in Schaumburg, said it is on the list because it has a facility in Israel employing several hundred persons.

"We believe that the best way to get the blacklist rescinded is through the practice of diplomacy and persuasion, through the United States government," said a company spokesman. "We are prepared to sell to Arab countries on the same principals used with other countries."

SEARS, ROEBUCK and Co. also is on the list. A spokesman said he believes the Arabs boycott his firm because they think an English company, Sears Holding Ltd., is affiliated with the American retailer.

It is not true, the spokesman said, adding Sears Holding Ltd., does business with Israel but the American firm does not. Sears Roebuck has no intention of trying to get its name removed from the boycott lists and has no intention of doing business with any Arab nations, he said.

A spokesman from Converse Rubber Co. said he would not speculate how the company got on the Saudi's list, adding there are 1,499 names on the list. The firm, most noted for making gym shoes, has a distribution center in Elk Grove Village, which moved there in 1973 from Melrose Park.

It was the Melrose Park address that was given on the blacklist even though the national headquarters is in Wilmington, Mass., he said. The company has no dealings with Israel, the spokesman added.

GENE BAUGHMAN, treasurer of De Soto Inc. chemical company in Des Plaines, said he is surprised the De Soto name appeared on the Saudi's list.

Baughman was not sure it was his firm although he is certain that the Des Plaines-based company is the largest in the country with the De Soto name because it grossed nearly $250 million in 1974.

"We do absolutely no business with the Arab world," he said, adding the company is sometimes a subcontractor or "sub-sub" for paint that goes on airplanes under U.S. Dept. of Defense contracts.

Other firms with Northwest suburban locations whose names appear on the Saudi list include E. J. Korvette, with an Arlington Heights location, and Lord & Taylor, with a store at Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg.

GOOD WORKING relationships between Saudi Arabia and Universal Oil Products Co. are expected to continue, said John O. Logan, president and board chairman of the Des Plaines-based firm. Logan would say no more concerning how his company would handle much-publicized blacklists put out by Saudi Arabia and other Arab nations against 1,500 U.S. businesses.

State school chief quashed letter biased against Jews

by STEVE NOVICK

A month ago State Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin hurriedly retracted a letter sent to Illinois colleges by his office, which, he said blatantly discriminated against Jewish teachers.

The letter, written by E. Darrell Elder, assistant director of teacher placement for Illinois, said teachers seeking jobs in an Arab shiekdom in the Middle East through International School Services could not be Jewish or have Jewish ancestors.

"Because of some of the problems in the Middle East presently, International School Services cannot employ for these positions (jobs for three teachers in the town of Dubai near the Persian Gulf) any teacher who has a Jewish surname, or who is an American Jew, or who has Jewish ancestors," said Elder in his Jan. 31 letter to placement officials.

"Please check on this before you refer anyone" the letter stated.

When Cronin became aware of the letters from Elder, he sent his own letters to the college placement officials and to A. Aaron Rosen, director of the Midwest regional office of the Anti-Defamation League.

STATEMENTS in Elder's letters "violate the prohibition of ethnic discrimination in both Illinois and federal statutes," Cronin said.

"The letter in question was thoughtlessly disseminated," he added, emphasizing, his office's policy is "totally nondiscriminatory."

"If International School Services continues to be discriminatory all connections will be severed," Cronin added in letters he wrote to Rosen and Greeney.

"You can be assured that I have taken every necessary step to correct this deplorable action in my office," Cronin concluded in his followup letter to placement officials.

Copies of the letters by Elder and Cronin were made available to The Herald through Cronin's office.

International School Services of Princeton, N.J. was named this week by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, which contends the firm practices discrimination against Jews in keeping with Arab boycott policies.

Diet mogul hungers for taste of politics

out the GOP kingmakers. Pounding his desk in his Oakbrook office, Cooper defended his right to be different and do things his way.

"It was my judgment to go," he said. "My right comes before the right of anyone to say if I can run. I have my franchise. It's an individual effort. Now I have to go out and get support. People have the right not to suppor me."

What about the issues? What is Cooper's solution to the crisis in the economy, the high unemployment rate, foreign policy, mass transportation, noise pollution, crime in the streets and so on? He ducked all questions. That will come out during the campaign, he said.

"Let me tell you what I won't do. I've been in politics 12 hours. I won't be an instant solution man. I have feelings about the issues but I'm not going to talk about them now."

AFTER MUCH PRODDING Cooper agreed to discuss his views on the economy. His training at New York University's School of Business Administration makes him knowledgeable on the subject, he says. He spelled out the course of action needed in one word: cooperation.

"The three sectors — big business, big government and big labor — don't understand each other," he said. "We need cooperation for the mutual benefit of all of us, not for the public sector or private sector."

Cooper said 37 cents of every $1 earned by Americans goes to government to spend. In 10 years, he said, 50 cents of every 97 will go to government. "That means you'll be spending 50 per cent of your time working for the government." He wants to change that.

Cooper insisted the Republican Party is the party of the people. He said the GOP has replaced the Democratic Party as protector of individual rights, "even though Republicans just came out of squatting on people's rights" in Watergate.

"Democrats list people in numbers, groups and labels. You're a member of a class . . . ethnic, labor, Jewish, consumer. Republicans will be perceived as the party of freedom once again. People feeling oppressed by government will find a home with the Republican Party."

BUT WILL COOPER be the one to lead them? His wealth will not be a factor in the primary or the actual election if he gets that far. New campaign spending laws limit a candidate to about $60,000 in the primary and $120,000 in the election. So the fledgling candidate is beginning to woo voters early. "I don't want to be a 90-day media wonder," he said.

Cooper said he's going to fight for what he believes in. If he loses, it won't be by default. But he believes he can win. He's not in it for kicks or simply to raise issues. "If I win Republican support, I will win the election. Democrats didn't win the last election, the Republicans lost it. Things can be made right again for this district in1976."

Cooper, who is Jewish, is a member of the board of directors of the Boy Scouts of America. In 1969, he founded the Richard H. Cooper Foundation in order to encourage support for a variety of charities in the North Shore. He and his wife, Lana, have two children. He has a third child by a previous marriage.

Incumbent files in schools race

A second candidate filed Friday in the race for two vacant seats on the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education.

Board incumbent Arthur Aronson, 2818 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Arlington Heights, filed the necessary nominating petitions. He has been a member of the Dist. 214 board since 1962 and is a school board veteran of more than 20 years. He will be seeking his fifth term on the high school board.

The other incumbent whose seat is up for reelection, Eugene Artemenko, 431 S. Millers Rd., Des Plaines, filed for reelection Wednesday.

Gross, Furlong win pair; Morris upset

by KEITH REINHARD

CHAMPAIGN — Forest View's John Gross and Hersey's Mark Furlong are the only area wrestlers still in contention for state wrestling titles.

Gross at 105 pounds and Furlong at 138 both won opening and quarterfinal bouts here Friday and will pair off in the semi-finals Saturday afternoon. Gross goes up against Danville's Calvin Nelson, who sports a 23-6 record.

Furlong will take on Deerfield's Dru Meshes, owner of a 23-2 record, and, like Furlong, making his second trip down to Assembly Hall.

Twelve local grapplers were entered in the big Class AA gathering, but only four survived opening round action. Two more fell Friday evening, including defending state champ Rick Morris of Elk Grove.

Morris, at 132, dropped a 7-6 heartbreaker to East Leyden's Ray Conrad, battling back from a 6-3 deficit only to have Conrad earn an escape point one second before the buzzer to break a 6-6 deadlock. It was the first setback absorbed by Morris in 28 bouts this year.

Also winning in first-round action and then losing in the quarterfinals was St. Viator heavyweight Scott Zettek. He was pinned by Tom Ryan of Richards.

Several of the area's first-round losers earned another crack at the competition through the consolation bracket and two rallied to remain alive. Brad Bonnivier of Maine West was dumped in his 132-pound opener, but bounced back to a 3-2 verdict over Ryan Bianchi of Pekin.

Hersey's Eric Strutz lost a 15-13 slugfest in the afternoon, but rebounded 5-0 over Chicago Harlan's Mike Williams.

Morris came back impressively, too, whipping Willie Warner of the defending state team champion — Rich Central, 18-6. Zettek was pinned again in his wrestleback match and was eliminated.

Also eliminated in the wrestlebacks after dropping first round openers were Buffalo Grove's Terry McMann and Rich Wilhelm. Earlier Maine West's Bryan Real and Roger Herrera, Roy Carlstrom of Rolling Meadows and Gary Hodge of Hersey fell in the opening round and were not afforded an opportunity to continue.

Team scoring after the first day of combat had Richards in front with 12 points. Easy Leyden had 10½, followed by Rochford East with nine and three teams tied for fourth at 8½ — Bloom, Naperville and Proviso East. Hersey was tied with Joliet Central at 4½ points for 11th.

Kingman sold to Mets

Infielder Dave Kingman, the Prospect High School product who was unhappy as a San Francisco Giant, was sold to the New York Mets Friday for a sum believed to be in the six figure range.

Kingman, 26, was sold at his request. "I was unhappy with the Giants," said this former baseball and basketball star at Prospect. "I didn't see where I was going to play."

The Mets had been after Kingman since the 1973 season and again made a strong pitch for him at last winter's meetings in New Orleans. "We wanted to trade them Jerry Koosman for Kingman," a Mets' spokesman said. "They wanted Jon Matlack instead and we turned down the deal."

Kingman hit 77 homers in his career with the Giants but struck out 10 times for every home run. Fielding deficiencies at third and first base forced him to spend as much time on the bench as in the field.

Black Hawks rally, take 1st place

Chicago took over first place in its division of the National Hockey League Friday night, overcoming a three-goal deficit to defeat Atlanta 4-3 on Jim Pappin's third-period goal. Ivan Boldirev scored Chicago's second and third goals and assisted on Pappin's gamewinner which came with less than seven minutes to play.

The victory gave Chicago 67 points, one more than Vancouver in its division, but the Black Hawks have played three games more than the Canucks. An unassisted goal by Dick Redmond put the Black Hawks on the scoreboard and two goals by Boldirev gave them a tie going into the third period. Pappin tipped in the winning goal from a flurry around the Flames' net at 14:23.

Bulls' win streak ends in Houston

Kevin Kunnert scored 20 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to lead the Houston Rockets to a 102-87 victory over Chicago Friday night, snapping the Bulls' eight-game win streak.

Matt Guokas led Chicago with 13 points. John Block, Roland Garrett, Bob Love and Chet Walker each had 10 points for Chicago. The Rockets jumped to an early 6-0 lead and built the margin to 15 points at 25-10 with 2:32 in the first quarter. They opened the second period with 10 straight points. Their largest margin was 24 points, 86-62, in the fourth quarter.

Cubs send LaRoche to Cleveland

The Cleveland Indians acquired reliever Dave LaRoche from the Chicago Cubs Friday for pitcher Milt Wilcox in a waiver deal. The Indians also obtained minor league outfielder Brock Davis. LaRoche had a contract dispute with the Cubs and had threatened to play without a pact this season.

Bear ticket prices go up $1

Inflation hit the Chicago Bears Friday with the announcement that ticket prices will be raised $1 next season. This means ticket scales will be $8 and $6 per game at Soldier Field.

Unknown pro leads Gleason tourney

An unknown pro golfer — Eddie Pearce — took a one-shot lead Friday in the richest ($260,000) tour stop — the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Golf Classic. Pearce's 64 gave him a two-day total of 131, one stroke ahead of the pack.

Arnold Palmer was only three shots back by virtue of a fine 64. Trailing by five shots (135) after a 69 was Jack Nicklaus.

St. Viator's Rohl reaches 100 free finals; Hinsdale's Griebel dazzles

by MIKE KLEIN

Don Watson has coached some exceptional swimmers at Hinsdale Central, young men so quick you'd swear they were born with flippered feet and webbed hands.

But maybe Dan Griebel has gills and scales, too.

Griebel flirted with one national high school record (now held by Olympian Mark Spitz) and blistered an Illinois prep mark by nearly nine seconds Friday night in first-round action of IHSA swimming finals at New Trier East.

When the two-day tournament resumes at 1 p.m. today, Hinsdale Central will prove it has the greatest team in Illinois prep history. The Red Devils qualified both relays plus all 18 individual entrants.

And the Great Griebel just might get his national record in 200 free. That's where he swam a 1:41.5 last night, one second off Spitz's national time.

"In the 200 we were going for the state record but I took off too fast and then died in the last 50," said Griebel after Watson allowed him to momentarily halt post-meet practice laps.

His first goal Saturday is the 1:41.3 Illinois prep record set by Hinsdale Central's Tom Beyer in 1972. And Griebel should be primed; he can't accomplish much more in 500 freestyle.

That's where the young man swam 4:38.7, an Illinois record by nearly nine seconds that sent the squeezing-room-only crowd of more than 2,000 into hysterics. Griebel acknowledged a long, standing ovation.

Local entrants were wiped away in great numbers. But time checks will show this is unquestionably the strongest prep meeting in Illinois history, if that's any consolation. Many of Friday evening's lower placings would have taken points last year.

Only St. Viator sophomore Mark Rohl in 100 freestyle and Hersey diver Jeff Speakman have advanced to competition for a state title.

Rohl placed fifth in preliminaries at 48.4 seconds. Hersey's Speakman stands ninth with 287.28 points after eight dives with three remaining. Maine East diver Chris Dickson, 278.01, and Hersey's Bill Cashmore, 273.66, placed 13-14 and won't compete in the field now narrowed to one dozen divers.

Freestylers Joe Nitch from Arlington and Hersey's Chris Tague are slated for consolation championships today. Tague placed seventh in 200 free, 1:47.6, and 10th in 500, 4:50.9.

Nitch who was sixth in 500 last year and seventh in 200, went 4:49.9 for seventh over the longer distance and 1:49.0 in 200, not placing. Nitch and Tague had both hoped for much quicker racts.

Prospect's Chris Prinslow and St. Viator's Mark Nelles didn't make the backstroke cut, ending up in today's consolations. Prinslow was ninth, 56.8, and Nelles 10th, 57.1.

So from nearly any vantage point, the story (again) became Hinsdale. "I came, I saw but I still don't believe it," said one IHSA lane judge.

"We're right up there with the 1971 national championship team," said Griebel, comparing these Red Devils to the Hinsdale group that had future Olympian John Kinsella. "We've got a little more depth but they had some super kids."

Hinsdale stormed away with medley and freestyle relays in 1:39.4 and 3:13.3 respectively. Evanston is close in medley, behind by eight-tenths, but the Red Devils command a four second lead in freestyle.

Griebel, of course, won two events. Much less renowned is their Greg Porter, the leader in butterfly, 51.9, and individual medley, 1:59.0, for a new pool record.

Their Paul Sigfusson, formerly of Prospect, gave the Red Devils a seventh leader when he captured backstroke in 54.2.

Dave Boldebuck and Joe Pringle of Hinsdale stand two-three in diving behind leader Doug McKaskill from Hillcrest. All could break the previous state record 509.92 set by Rockford Guilford's Chip Geiger three years ago.

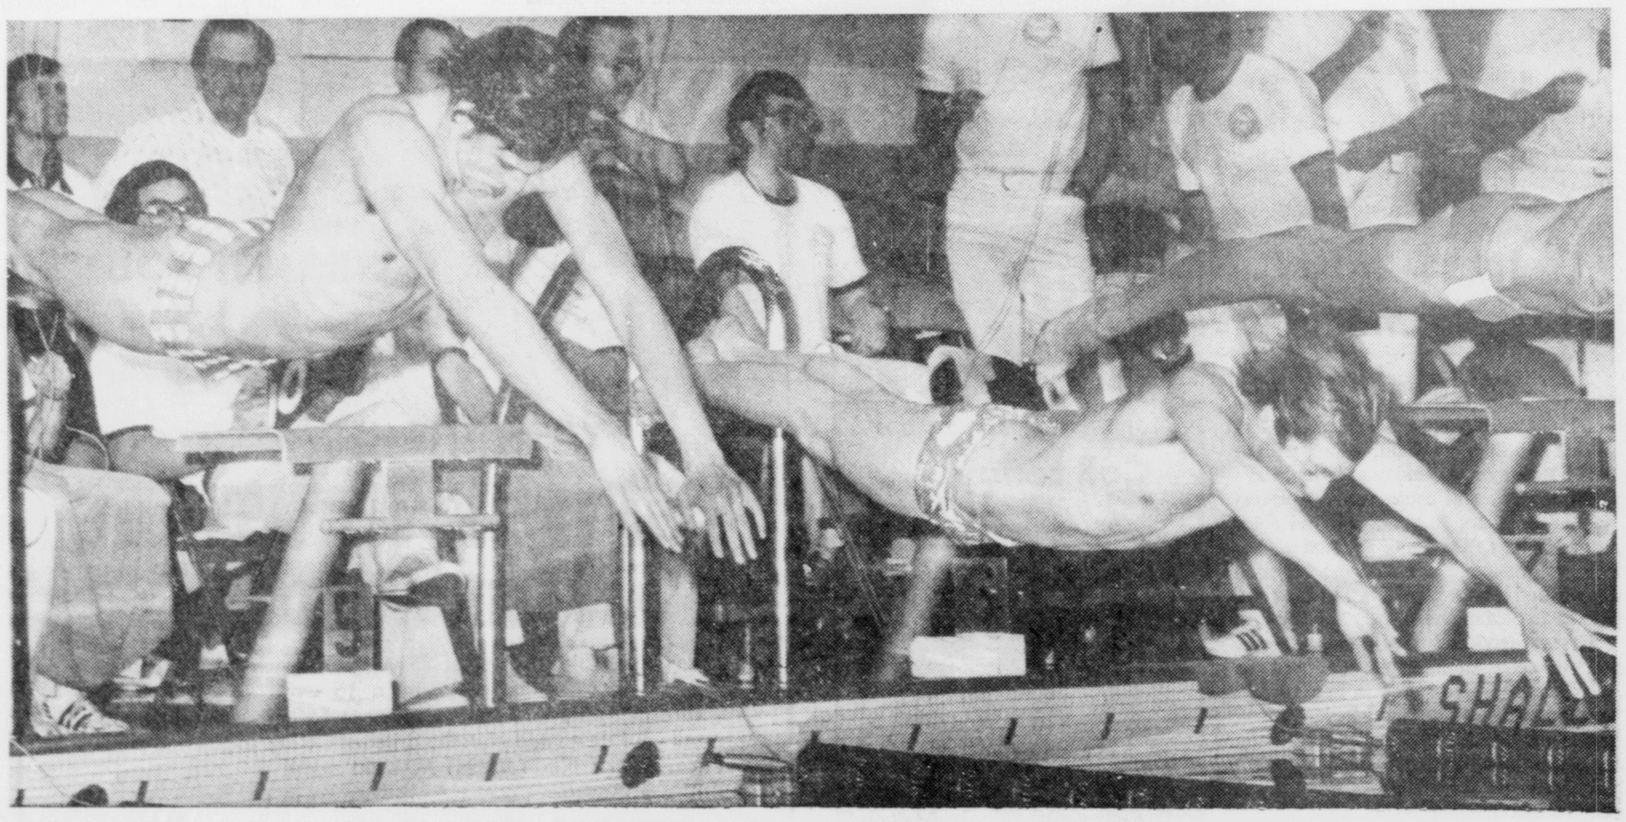
Non-Hinsdale leaders are Pete Fischer of New Trier West in 50 freestyle, 21.8, Vince Ackerson of Rock Island in 100 free, 48.1, and Jim Shanel of Fenwick in breaststroke, 1:01.2.

Hinsdale's Watson, a master at making people work, allowed, "We've gotten 18 swimmers and both relays downstate before, but I think it's the first time we've had everyone in the top six."

There's a sidelight to Griebel's 500 free state record. A new mark was swum about 15 minutes earlier when Carbondale junior Chris Phillips went 4:45.8. It didn't last long.

And Griebel wasn't the least bit phased when judges ruled a false start. "Nothing was bothering me," he said.

That's for sure.



THE FIFTH HEAT of 500 freestyle found Hinsdale Central's Dan Griebel next to Arlington's Joe Nitch last night at IHSA swim final preliminaries in the New Trier East pool. Griebel established a new state record, 4:38.7, nearly nine seconds quicker than the old mark. Nitch qualified for the consolation swim-off in 500 free but missed in 200. Oregon Bottle Bill may be the only answer

Beverage can castoffs choking environment

Pop-tops — those little metal rings and tabs that break the carbonated seal on every major soft drink and beer can manufactured in the United States — may become a collector's item in the years to come.

Not that they aren't already.

Pop-tops have become trinkets of chivalry. If you bend the protruding tab just right, the lid-lifter becomes a token ring . . . not quite suitable for engagement announcements . . . but unique just the same.

They can be strung into bracelets or necklaces or, as the big beer drinkers have found, the remains or a year's worth of suds can be linked into room dividers.

Even the plastic reinforcement that holds a six pack of your favorite beverage together has become a decorative tool. The elastic bands can be woven into Christmas wreaths or laced into centerpieces, not to mention the Herculean admiration that accompanies the breaking of one or more of the six loops with a single hand.

In a way, both these extras that freeload a beverage purchase have a useful purpose. They keep the drinks fresh and in handy carrying packages. But to the strict environmentalist as well as the casual outdoorsman, the two by-products are a pain in the can.

Those without a jewelry fetish or the uncreative mind have litttle use for either article. This is when the pop-top and plastic holder become a deadly weapon called litter.

Rarely does a campsite, backpacking trail, beach or body of water survive the shower of debris created unconsciously by the outdoorsman.

Every conservation department and environmental agency in the nation recognizes the growing problem, but Oregon was the first state to take consequential action.

Rather than rely on millions of dollars of advertising devoted to "Keep America Beautiful" campaigns, Oregonians met the pop-top issue head on.

Not only are "pull-tabs" illegal, but the state went as far as making throwaway bottles and cans equally illegitimate. Every beverage container now carries a 2-5 cent deposit value.

Despite arguments by beer and soft-drink producers and can and bottle manufacturers, the controversial system has worked. The consumer profit motive (refund) and the increasing awareness of anti-litter slogans have made the action a smashing success.

"We buy beer, not bottles," Nancie Fadeley, chairperson of the Oregon House of Representatives Environment and Land Use Committee stated explicitly.

Conservationists chimed in and the Oregon Bottle Bill, as it has become known, grudgingly passed both houses and became law in 1972.

The repercussions have been extremely encouraging.

In a year-long study conducted by Oregon State University, the Oregon Bottle Bill showed that sales volume of beer and soft drinks increased in every month except one.

According to the report, the returns of soft-drink deposit bottles increased from 80 per cent to 92 while returns of beer bottles climbed from 75 to 95 per cent.

In another research effort by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, a survey was made along Oregon highways and disclosed that beverage-container litter had been reduced 81 per cent.

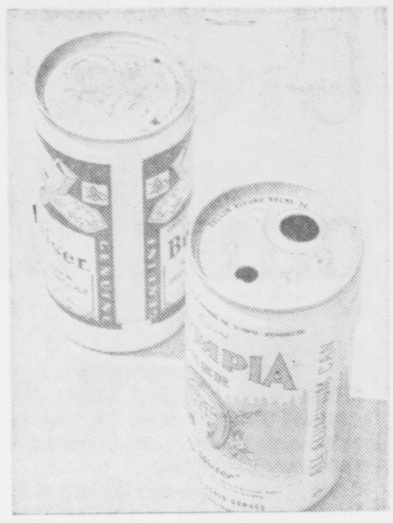
That figure increased to 96 per cent when non-returnables purchased out-of-state were removed. The report also stated that ALL littler — not just beverage-container litter — was down 23 per cent.

And still another benefit of the law was that it produced a net increase of 365 jobs and raised Oregon's total working payroll by an estimated $1.6 million per year.

This is not to overshadow the tremendous burden placed on bottle and can manufacturers or soft-drink and beer distributors. They must be the ones who shoulder the responsibility for a sizable adjustment. The cost would presumably be passed onto the consumer in higher beverage prices.

But with 60 billion (60,000,000,000) throwaway bottles and cans jumping out of the molds of manufacturers every year, the legislation initiated by Oregon could be a savior to our envornment and wildlife.

I just hope it catches on as fast as pop-top stringing.



New look in beverage cans.

Jury still out at Illinois hearings

Beverage-container hearings have been conducted in Illinois for three years. The 14 hearings concluded in December, 1974 and the record is now closed.

Fourteen volumes of testimony and three boxes of evidence later, the shorthanded Pollution Control Board is currently reviewing the subject. No decisoin is expected until a fifth board member is appointed by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Turkeys continue outfoxing hunters

Old turkey gobblers strut through the woodlands, puffing out colorful purple breasts and fanning tails wide as they answer calls of love-sick hens.

However, as the wild gobbler works at gathering a harem of hens in the spring, chances are just as great the love call it is answering is not coming from a hen.

Hiding in the shadows of the April morning may be one of Illinois' 1,400 turkey hunters. Turkey hunting opponents have no fear. Most of the time, the old tom will never get within shooting range of the hunter.

Illinois held its first turkey hunting season in 67 years in April of 1970. Although 1,000 permits were issued the first year, and more than 1,000 permits issued each season since then, a total of any 211 turkeys have been taken in the five years of Illinois wild turkey hunting.

In 1974 the state held a 10-day split season. A record 55 gobblers were harvested.

This month the state will issue 1,400 permits for a special 12-day season in April in four counties — Alexander, Jackson, Pope and Union. At the most, 5 to 10 per cent of the hunters are expected to be successful.

Part of the problem with Illinois turkey hunting is few, if any, hunteres have had enough experience to become experts. Many hunters may not admit it, but the low-kill ratio is proof enough.

Illinois' wild turkey population disappeared in 1903 and a four-year attempt to restock half-wild birds between 1954 and 1958 failed.

In 1959, turkeys were trapped in the wild and imported from Mississippi, Arkansas and West Virginia. They were released in five areas of southern Illinois, and established a new population.

Many other states have undertaken similar restocking programs with equal success. However, although Illinois hunters now have the chance to pursue the birds, most can rely only on hunting manuals for advice.

The Department of Conservation advises beginners that successful hunts depend on a hunter's ability to duplicate the turkey mating call. Modern technology, such as records and tape recordings, can train a beginner to duplicate a call with some degree of accuracy.

The problem is, the department said, "sometimes it seems that any sound vaguely resembling the call of the turkey will bring a bird to the gun with no trouble at all. But then the very next time out, the most seductive and most perfect notes will seemingly have no appeal."

The difficulty in gaining experience is partially accounted for by the limited season and the random drawing for permits, which does not guarantee a hunter will have a chance to hunt the birds year after year.

Also, only one gobbler per season is allowed, and when it is bagged, the season is over for the hunter.

If anything, a beginning turkey hunter who has practiced calling, is well read on the sport and has a strong deer hunting background, might stand a chance.

Hunting turkeys, according to experts, takes patience, and the hunter must move with caution and be well camouflaged.

Years of stalking or waiting on stands for white tail deer would seem an appropriate background for the beginning turkey hunter.

The bird has keen eyesight, can distinguish color and can be spooked by a wrong move or sound.

In a special booklet on wild turkeys, the Department of Conservation advised, "Like the wise old-timer said: 'There are turkeys who don't even trust their own kin. If they could smell you, nobody would ever kill one.' "

Hersey takes team title in sectional gym action

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

The Hersey Huskies swept all four events of the second session of the Buffalo Grove gymnastics sectional to take the team title going away Friday night.

Rolling Meadows finished second in the team derby and Arlington third.

The Muenz brothers, Kevin and Danny, repeated their district and conference meet performances by placing one-two in the all-around with Kevin taking the title with an 8.36 average. Danny's average for the five events was 7.68, quite a feat in light of the fact Danny fell off two of the apparatus.

Kevin's all-around average was a significant improvement on the 7.97 he put together in the Wheeling district.

Hersey's night of fun began on the trampoline, where Mike Kropp prolonged the suspense of who would win right up until the last man, himself.

Conant's Tom Hall, going off just two men in front of Kropp threw an 8.20 routine to take over the lead from Hersey's No. 2 trampolinist, Gregg Manning, who had flown to an 8.00.

Manning ultimately wound up in a tie for third place with Rolling Meadows' Jim Losito.

Kropp put an end to the speculation with his 8.70 showing.

Alex Gimbut, also of Rolling Meadows, capped off the top five with a 7.95 marking.

Kevin Muenz won his second specialist event championship on the P-Bars with an 8.65 score that came, like Kropp's, as the last man entered.

Muenz salvaged his score with a nice bit of control when, after trying to change positions on a hand stand, he failed and had the strength and presence of mind to regain his stand and hold himself steady.

The routine knocked Mundelein's Ray York out of the driver's seat. He had been judged at 8.00 immediately prior to Muenz's winning routine.

Arlington's Drew Parlee, who wound up the night in third place in the all-around with an average of 7.25, collected a third place medal on the P-Bars with a 7.95 score.

The last spot in the medal group was a toss up between Jeff Scheck of Arlington and Steve Ninow of Schaumburg at 7.80. Ninow improved on his district winning score of 7.65 but the improvement in competition caught up with him.

The P-Bars was the second event of the sectional that Danny Muenz fell from his routine. The same had happened to him the night before on the high bar but he performed the rest of his routine well enough to score in the high sevens. The same held true with the P-Bars where he was judged at 7.55.

The Hersey sweep was complete with the still rings as Vince Corrado threw the identical score that he marked in the district to win at 8.45.

Wheeling's Dale Brungraber had trailed Corrado in the district with an 8.00 score and even though he boosted that to 8.30 in the sectional it still got him no closer than second.

Blaine Voss, Hersey's No. 2 ring man and a third place finisher in the district, finished out of the top five with his 7.65 showing.

Brungraber's second place berth was shared by Meadows' Dave Gauger, who had held the early lead on the event with his 8.30 routine.

A second Mustang ring man, Dave Bycroft, placed fourth in the event with an 8.15.

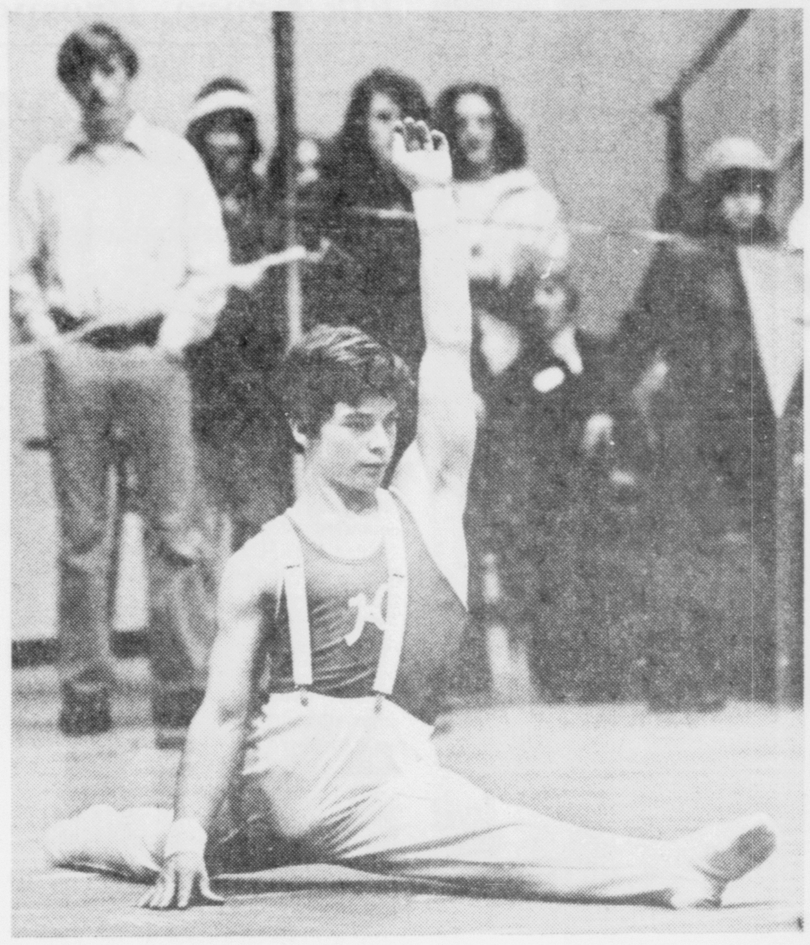
Kevin Muenz closed out the top five with an 8.10 mark.

Arlington, foiled in its attempts to run down the Meadows' gymnasts after the first night's competion, was dealt a severe setback, in its effort to continue domination of the Mustangs that had started in the district, on the trampoline.

The Cardinals' lead trampoline man, Chris Smith, was scored at only 7.45 on his routine and missed finishing in the top-10 by a tenth of a point. Jon Harwell was judged at 7.15 and Brian Wigren at 5.55.

After the first night's action, including the free ex, side horse and high bar events, Hersey held the eam lead with Meadows and Arlington running behind.

Event winners the first night were Keith Oehlsen of Hersey on free ex (8.95), Jim Conroy of Meadows and Gordon Schmidt of Arlington on side horse (8.25) and Kevin Muenz on high bar (8.85).



HERSEY'S Dan Muenz runs through his free exercise routine during the first night of action in the Buffalo Grove sectional Thursday night. Muenz came back Friday night and finished up the evening in second place behind his brother Kevin in the all-around category. Danny's all-around average was 7.68.

Arlington drops 59-58 thriller

A Herald Staff Report

Arlington lost another heartbreaker Friday evening.

Coach George Zigman's Cardinals, who suffered a 78-73 loss to Prospect Wednesday in the Mid-Suburban League title game, dropped a 59-58 thriller at Hinsdale Central.

A 10-foot jumper by John Yaezel gave the Cards a 58-55 lead with 4:42 remaining, but they couldn't score again in suffering their fourth loss of the season. Hinsdale was effective in killing off a good portion of the clock.

Hinsdale trimmed the lead to one point with 3:29 left and went ahead at the 2:46 mark. Two costly Arlington turnovers came in the closing seconds, but the Cards still had a chance with 35 seconds remaining when Terry Donahue controlled a jump.

A shot by Jerry DeSimone, after a great move, hit the rim, and Hinsdale controlled. The Red Devils missed a free throw with five seconds left, gained the rebound and missed a shot, but Arlington couldn't get down the floor in time.

Arlington was in command throughout a good portion of the contest and had a seven-point advantage early. The leads fluctuated between two and six points, and the Cards had first half foul problems with Jim Grandt, Donahue and Yaezel saddled with three each.

Hinsdale went up by six early in the third period, but Arlington fought back and spurted to a five-point advantage after three. The Cards held the lead at three points when Yaezel hit with 4:42 left. That's when the problems began.

Yaezel was high for the Cards with 17 points. Sophomore Greg Kloiber, who came off the bench to do a fine job, chipped in 14, and Dennis Gaare had 10. Arlington hit only six of 14 free throws while shooting 26-of-71 from the floor.

BARRINGTON RIP HUSKIES

A quick and physical Barrington basketball team handed Hersey its 19th loss in 24 games, 53-40, Friday at Hersey.

Barrington hit the Huskies with a swarming defense in the first quarter, forcing turnovers and upsetting Hersey's attack. Bronco guard Ken Hatfield and 6-5 forward John Tichy led Barrington's offensive assault, piling up a 23-10 first-quarter margin.

The only time Hersey held the lead was before the game started on Rich Madison's technical-foul free throw that resulted from a Barrington infraction in warmup.

Nine first-half points by Madison and six from Clyde Glass kept Hersey within range. Two baskets by Tom Burzak near the end of the half cut a 21-point Barrington lead to 36-19.

Barrington went into a stall in the third period, but it backfired as three straight turnovers and buckets by Madison, Burzak, and Glass brought the Huskies to within nine. But Hatfield, Tichy, and Scott Jensen went back to work offensively to seal the win.

Burzak paced Hersey's scoring with 12 points. Madison had 11 and Glass 10. Jensen had 12 for Barrington, followed by Tichy with 11.

CONANT WINS IN OVERTIME

Conant needed an overtime to get past a good Fenton team Friday, 71-68.

The visiting Cougars held a 12-point lead with three minutes left in regulation when they lost their starting guards — Mark Pellegrino and John Rudzena. Fenton's press helped tie the game at 63-all.

Pete Scaffidi scored a basket and two free throws to account for half of the Cougars' eight points. Also scoring a pair of clutch free throws were Ron Sulaski and Mike Frisch. Scaffidi poured in a game-high 23 points.

Also scoring in double figures for the Cougars were Pellegrino (13), Brian O'Donnell (12) and Rick Sulaski (12).

Sulaski also paced Conant with 13 rebounds. O'Donnell had seven.

The Cougars were especially tough at the foul line, hitting 29 of 39.

MAINE WEST COASTS, 71-54

Outscoring Deerfield by 24 points in the first three quarters, Maine West coasted to their 13th win, 71-54, Friday night.

Ahead by 10 at the half, Maine scored 24 to Deerfield's 10 in the deciding third period. Steve Zuccarini, with 12 points, came alive and did all his scoring in this quarter.

In the first half, it was Glen Heiden who kept Maine in control with 16 points. He finished as the game's leader with 22.

Down 13-12 with 2:34 left in the opening quarter, Maine put through 10 straight, extending into the second period. With 2:13 left in the half, Deerfield was within two points, 27-25. But Maine put together another streak, this time 11 points, and Deerfield didn't come within 10 the rest of the night.

Paul Dick (17) and Bob Zuccarini (11) along with Heiden and Bob's brother Steve scored in double figures for Maine. John Polick, with 21, was the only Deerfield player over seven points.

Maine (13-9) enters the Rolling Meadows Regional Wednesday night against Elk Grove.

BISON BUMP WAUCONDA

Brian Allsmiller tossed in 25 points and Fred Heesch added 12 points and 10 rebounds as Buffalo Grove took a 54-47 win at Wauconda Friday.

Allsmiller, the Bison's 6-7 sophomore sensation, had 15 points in the first half to help his team to a 26-20 intermission lead.

Heesch, a 6-3 sophomore, was a surprise starter for the Bison and a pleasant surprise for his coach, Paul Grady.

"Heesch did a helluva job for us again tonight," said Grady. "He was a big factor."

The Bison opened up a 14-point margin in the fourth period before Grady decided to go to his bench. The victory gives the Bison a 12-11 record going into the regionals.

MAINE EAST FALTERS

Glenbrook North held Maine East guard Mark Mahoney to five field goals and 14 points Friday as it powered past the Demons 69-54 in a Central Suburban League game in the Spartan gym.

The Spartans, who led the entire game, were aided by spurts of seven points in the second quarter and 12 points in the third quarter en route to the win.

The Demons trailed 37-32 when Spartan guard George Angelopolis stole the ball three times to help Glenbrook move to a 49-32 lead.

Jack Moller of Glenbrook North led the game in scoring with 24 points. Mark Berns led the Demons with 20.

Maine East coach Paul McClelland said his team couldn't match the Spartans physically and were worn down in the battle of the boards.

Glenbrook North took a 15-12 lead at the quarter, moved it 33-28 at the half and then led 55-43 after three periods before both benches were emptied.

Elk Grove, Prospect send teams

Gymnastics district unfolds at Niles West

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

The Mid-Suburban League will provide the Niles West Gymnastics Sectional with two of its three district champions when Elk Grove and Prospect compete in the two session affair today.

The first session will begin at 1:00 and will feature free exercise, side horse and high bar. The evening session, with trampoline, P-Bars and still rings being contested, will begin at 7:00.

Niles West High School is located in Skokie on Oakton Street at the Edens Expressway.

The host Indians will put a strong team on the floor themselves, led by the finest individual gymnast in the state, Bart Conner. Conner will be defending his state all-around championship, won with an 8.59 average last year, at the state finals at Prospect March 7-8.

Elk Grove and Forest View represented the MSL in the Niles North district last week with the Grenadiers nailing down the team title with 138.5 points.

Forest View finished sixth with 11 team points.

"If the kids hit I think we can win the sectional," said Elk Grove coach Fred Gaines, "because we have enough high scorers. Niles West has Conner and he may win a lot of the events but we should be able to put enough kids up close to him to take the team championship."

The Grens will go with three all-around men in their effort to advance their team to the state finals.

Gene Christensen put together a 7.72 average in the district to win the all-around championship and was followed in second by Matt Damore (7.13) and in third by Dave Glaser (6.80).

The pressure will be on the Gren all-arounders as only four other specialists are entered in the sectional for Elk Grove.

Damore, Christensen and Glaser will handle the free exercise chores all by themselves. Christensen (8.3) and Damore (7.95) picked a third and fifth place medal respectively in the district while Glaser finished out of the money with a 5.90.

Tim Connelly has a very real chance to win the sectional side horse championship if he duplicates the 8.6 routine that earned him his district crown. Christensen took a sixth on that event in the district with a 5.45 score.

The Grenadiers walloped the field on the high bar, the event which proved to be the turning point of the meet as Elk Grove passed Niles North which had taken a lead after two events, with a one-two-three finish by Christensen, Tom Balla and Damore.

Christensen picked up his second event championship of the night with his 8.60 routine and was followed to the winner's stand by Balla at 8.25 and Damore, in a tie for third, at 8.10. The Grens high bar performers collected 27.5 points for their team, the highest event total for any team in the Niles North district.

Forest View's lone representative in the sectional will be trampolinist Bob Walsh, who threw a 7.55 routine to win a fifth place medal in the district.

Matt Damore and specialist Scott Harriett are Elk Grove's trampolinists. Damore finished seventh with a 7.35 routine while Harriett finished second, trailing Maine East's Crigler by .15 of a point.

Maine East's Stan Kutin won the district P-Bars event with an 8.40 marking while Elk Grove's Jim Schwartz finished in a tie for second with his 8.20 judging. One of the gymnasts he tied with was Christensen. Damore's 7.75 routine was good enough for ninth place and two team points.

The still rings competitors for Elk Grove will be led by Damore and Christensen, who tied for fourth in the district with an 8.05 score.

The Glenbrook South District proved, after one event, to be the exclusive province of the Prospect Knights.

"The kids did a helluva job," said Knight coach Pat Kivland. "After the free ex event one of the other coaches came up to me and said, 'You've got it.'

"But the Niles West sectional is so strong we could finish as low as fifth in the team standings."

Prospect rolled up 145 team points to win the GBS district by 58 points with the free ex team of Doug Zahour, Doug Krebs and Russ Klingaman finishing one-to-three to get the Knights off on the right foot.

Prospect put three more onto the list of ranked qualifiers for the sectional on the side horse as Dan Bartlett, Dave Scheible and Rich Savage finished second-third and fourth.

Bartlett went on to win the all-around with a 7.36 average while Klingaman took a second place medal with his 6.70 average.

Zahour just snuck into the medalist group on the trampoline with a fifth place 7.10 routine.

Kurt Cederberg will lead the Knights on the P-Bars, exactly what he did in the district with a first place score of 8.25.

"Kurt came up to me before the meet," Kivland said, "and asked what he needed to advance to the sectionals. Then he went out and did just enough to move up. I expect him to get better and better with each level of competition."

Jim Tangney will work out on the P-Bars for the Knights after taking a fourth in the district with a 7.45.

Glen Wilke (second, 8.25), Bob Lopotko (third, 8.05) and Klingaman (fifth, 7.75) will be Prospect's ranked qualifier on the still rings.

Central Suburban holds track test

Maine East will host the Central Suburban League indoor track and field meet today beginning at 11 a.m., with Glenbrook North and Maine West among the top contenders for the team title.

Conference squads competed in divisional qualifying meets on Tuesday and the Spartans of Glenbrook North and the Warriors of Maine West came away as the high point-getters.

Coach John Coughlan of Maine East's Demons discounted the importance of the divisional title. "We don't worry about winning the division," he said. "We just want to get each kid in the event where we feel he will do best in the conference meet."

So if Coughlan's team comes away with conference honors today, it would be a nifty bonus..

The Demons took three places in the North division meet Tuesday at Maine East, including a swift 1:47.7 effort in the four-lap relay by Sam Rea, John Schmid, Mike Babcock, and Tim O'Hagan. Brian Briars, Maine East's superb sophomore, won the long jump with a personal season-best of 20-2½ and teammate Bob Gaza took first place with a 6-2 high jump.

Maine West captured six firsts at Maine South. The mile relay team of Randy Van Fleck, Howie Blietz, John Whipple, and Mike Kelly led the way with a 3:36 effort.

Other winners for the Warriors were Gary Brenner in the mile (4:30.1), Joe Paul in the two-mile (9:36.1) Van Fleck in the 880 (2:00.1), Kelly in the 440 (:52.7) and Glenn Watson in the long jump (20-½).

Among the other South division qualifiers for coach Ron Brown's Warriors, along with their times and distances, are: Scott Unger(:05.7) and Kelly (:05.7) in the 50-yard dash; John McCabe in the two-mile (9:52); Steve Meyers (:06.8) and Joe Farrell (:06.9) in the 50-yard high hurdles; Jeff Bridges in the 880 (2:05.5); and the sprint relay team of Rudy Martinez, Watson, Farrell, and Bob Waymel (1:39.1).

Other Warrior qualifiers are: Blietz in the 440 (:53.9); Whipple in the low hurdles (:06.3); Paul in the mile (4:42); Meyers in the high jump (5-10); Scott Sykora (12-0) and Jim Winiecki (11-6) in the pole vault; and Jim Ford in the shot put (44-6).

Maine East's qualifiers, in addition to their three winners, are: Mark Tomasik in the two-mile (9:37.2); Briars in the high hurdles (:6.9); John Schmid in the 50 (:5.8); John Hinterhauser (2:03.6) and Les Yahiro (2:07.1) in the 880; and Bob Schmid in the 440.

Other Demon qualifiers are: Briars (:06.5) and Curt Meine (:06.9) in the low hurdles; and Tomasik (4:32.1) and Dave Seathre (4:35.1) in the mile; Rich Lindberg in the high jump (6-0); Mark Duda (12-0) and Mike Haber (12-0) in the pole vault; Meine in the long jump (19-2½); and Terry Melinger in the shot put (50-1½).

Maine East's mile relay squad of Bob Schmid, O'Hagan, Babcock, and Hinterhauser also qualified in 3:35.9.

Falcons win triangular

The Wildcat Relays are still three weeks away, but Wheeling coach Jim Nagel and his track squad are starting to focus on the big indoor invitational already.

The Wildcat trackmen put another indoor meet under their belts Wednesday and Nagel's boys are coming along just fine. By the time they host the Wildcat Relays on March 21, the 'Cats should be near peak indoor form.

Wheeling hosted a triangular meet on Wednesday as Nagel got a chance to see the defending Mid-Suburban League champion Forest View Falcons show their stuff. Forest View took 10 first places and garnered 72 points to 40 for Lake Park and 35 for Wheeling.

Junior Falcon Mike Harvey captured individual wins in the long jump (20-11) and the 50-yard dash (:05.7) and sophomore teammate Darryl Robinson was a victor in both the mile (4:43.9) and the two-mile (10:02). Forest View junior Jim Vartanian was a double winner, too. He won the 50-yard high hurdles (:06.7) and the lows (:06.2).

But Wheeling, competing in only its second meet of the year, was right on the Falcons' heels. Miler Augie Ziccarelli, who returned to running only recently after an appendix operation in January, was second in 4:45.4. Larry DeGioia ran second in the two-mile in 10:07.5.

Another top Wildcat shotputter is Randy Rubner, whose 46-6 effort was a close second to Forest View's Mike Mischnick (47-1½). Third-place efforts were turned in by Wheeling's Keith Berglund in the high jump and Mark Larson in the triple jump (37-6½).

The high point-getter for Wheeling, though, was senior Jim Lemke, who won the pole-vault event with 11-0 and finished second in the high hurdles and third in the lows. Lemke's times were :06.8 and :06.6, good enough for the state honor rolls.

"Jim's not really fast so he has to depend on technique and strength," said Nagel. "He's doing well."

For coach Bill Mohrmann's Forest View squad, the challenge is to keep improving after an impressive indoor start. The Falcons are getting good performances from a number of athletes, including Bill Mitsos, who won the 440-yard dash in :56.5, and Steve Schellenberger, the winner of the 880 (2:07.7). Forest View also took first in the 12-lap relay.

John Keneally was second for the Falcons in the high jump (5-6), as was Harvey in the triple jump (38-4½). Schellenberger and Tony Hess grabbed second spots for Forest ieVw in the 50-yard dash and the 880, respectively, and teammate Wes Bender notched second-place points with an 11-foot pole vault effort.

Stock prices continue upswing; Dow gains 7.90

NEW YORK (UPI) — Encouraged by another decline in interest rates investors pushed prices higher Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained 7.90 to 739.05. For the week, it gained 10.72 but gained 25.36 points for the month of February.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.82 to 81.59. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 24 cents. Advances topped declines, 833 to 508, among the 1,766 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 17,560,000 shares, bringing the total for February to around 423,917,000 shares, the second largest monthly turnover in NYSE history. Turnover Thursday totaled 16,430,000 shares.

INVESTORS WERE encouraged when First National City Bank of New York and Bank of America lowered the prime rate they charge key corporate customers to 8.25 per cent, the lowest level in 19 months.

Rockwell International was the most active issue off 1¼ to 20¾ on 339,700 shares. Earlier this week, Rockwell said its second quarter earnings would be lower. Pan American World Airways was the second most active NYSE issue, up 5/8 to 4 7/8 on 279,500 shares.

The NYSE halted trading for the day in Lockheed and Textron after Textron withdrew from a financial rescue of the aircraft maker. When the trading stopped, Lockheed was off 1/8 at 5¾ and Textron was ahead ¼ to 16 3/8.

PRICES CLOSED higher on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by 5 cents. Volume totaled 2,026,000 shares, compared with 1,990,000 traded Thursday.

On the Chicago Board Options Exchange, 32,262 contracts were traded compared with 32,650 Thursday. Northwest Orient April 20s led the actives, up 3/8 to ¾. IBM April 220s followed, up ¾ to 10. Polaroid April 25s were third, up 1-16 to 5-16.

Kerner loses second bid for parole

Former Gov. Otto Kerner Friday was denied immediate parole from the federal correctional institution in Lexington, Ky., because the judge hearing the request ruled he no longer had jurisdiction in the matter.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Taylor refused to rule on Kerner's plea that he was in poor health because a judge's control over a case ends 120 days after final court action.

Taylor, instead, handed the case back to prison authorities because, he said, they are in a better position to deal with the 66-year-old Kerner than the sentencing court.

A complete physical examination will be performed by prison doctors March 15 to determine the extent of Kerner's ailments. The National Appellate Parole Board is expected to review those findings April 14.

Lawyers for Kerner said he may have cancer and tuberculosis, that he has suffered four heart attacks in prison and is "dangerously undernourished."

Kerner was convicted In February 1973 and sentenced to serve three years in prison on bribery, mail fraud and conspiracy charges. He entered prison last July.

Illinois briefs

School workers lose jobs

Evanston Township High School officials have notified 76 nontenured teachers, counselors and social workers they will not be rehired in the fall because of financial problems, it was announced Friday.

Barbara Pannwill, Dist. 202 director of information, said the school board has projected a deficit of $832,000 for the school year along with a drop in enrollment of 200 students. The district has an enrollment of 4,560 students.

She said the district is required by law to notify the teachers and other personnel 60 days before the end of the year if their jobs are in jeopardy. "We're hoping we will be able to hire them back," she said.

Northwestern tuition up

Northwestern University said Friday it is increasing its undergraduate tuition by $360, citing "economic realities" as the reason for the jump.

"This is not the type of announcement that any university president likes to make," said school head Robert Strotz. The tuition will be raised from $3,480 to $3,840.

Strotz said the increase would permit the school to maintain its educational standards, but it would not be enough to increase salaries of faculty and other employes "as much as they deserve." The school has an enrollment of 6,500 undergraduates.

Indict cop-shooting suspect

A suburban Harvey man accused of shooting six policemen in a two-day span earlier this month was indicted Friday by a Cook County Grand Jury on charges of attempted murder and aggravated battery.

Timothy Johnson, 39, was charged in connection with the Feb. 13 shootings of five policemen in Harvey. A hearing in connection with the wounding of a sixth policeman in Chicago a day later will be held March 24.

Johnson, who is being held in Cook County Hospital on a $250,000 bond was charged with shooting one policeman after he was stopped for a minor traffic violation. He then shot four others while trying to elude police later that day.

State Sen. David J. Regner

Statewide ERA vote proposed by Sen. Regner

A statewide Equal Rights Amendment referendum was proposed Thursday in a bill sponsored by State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner introduced legislation to postpone Illinois General Assembly consideration of ERA until a referendum is held.

"So much pressure has been applied on legislators by those on both sides of this question that it is impossible for us to really determine how the public wants us to react," Regner said. "Considering the extreme seriousness of any effort to change our federal Constitution, it seems only proper that we should give all Illinois voters a chance to express themselves on this question before we make our final decision."

The legislation would delay a final vote on the ERA by the General Assembly until the outcome of the advisory referendum, which would be scheduled with the 1976 general election. The ERA question would be on a separate ballot. States have until the end of 1976 to vote on the amendment.

Regner said the Louisiana legislature took similar action earlier this year.

New Counseling Center office opening feted

Local officials and educators from throughout the Northwest suburbs gathered Friday to mark the opening of the Arlington Heights office of the Northwest Community Counseling Center of the Salvation Army.

The new facility, with offices at 1114 N. Arlington Heights Rd., will offer family and individual counseling through the program of the Northwest Community Counseling Center, which is headquartered in Des Plaines.

Presiding at the ceremonies was Mrs. Virginia Hayter, village president of Hoffman Estates and president of the Community Counseling Center's Advisory Council.

Mrs. Hayter stressed the "emphasis on people" always associated with the Salvation Army and its family-services counseling. For the Salvation Army, Col. Andrew S. Miller said, "This new facility is the work of many people. It will not eliminate the tensions in the suburbs; it will not mend families which cannot be mended, but it will offer a place for professional counseling to whomever comes to the door and the people who staff this office will give of themselves as much as they are asked."

The counseling center offices will be open 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

JUNIOR GIRL SCOUT Troop 239 of Arlington Heights is among groups launching the annual Girl Scout Cookie sale in the Northwest suburbs today. From left, Carin Richards, Lisa Salcedo, Susan Snowball and Janet Herrmann display the variety of cookies on sale throughout the month door-to-door and elsewhere.

MTM runs ship on a different course

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — There appears to be two dynasties building in television comedy — the Norman Lear dynasty and the Mary Tyler Moore dynasty.

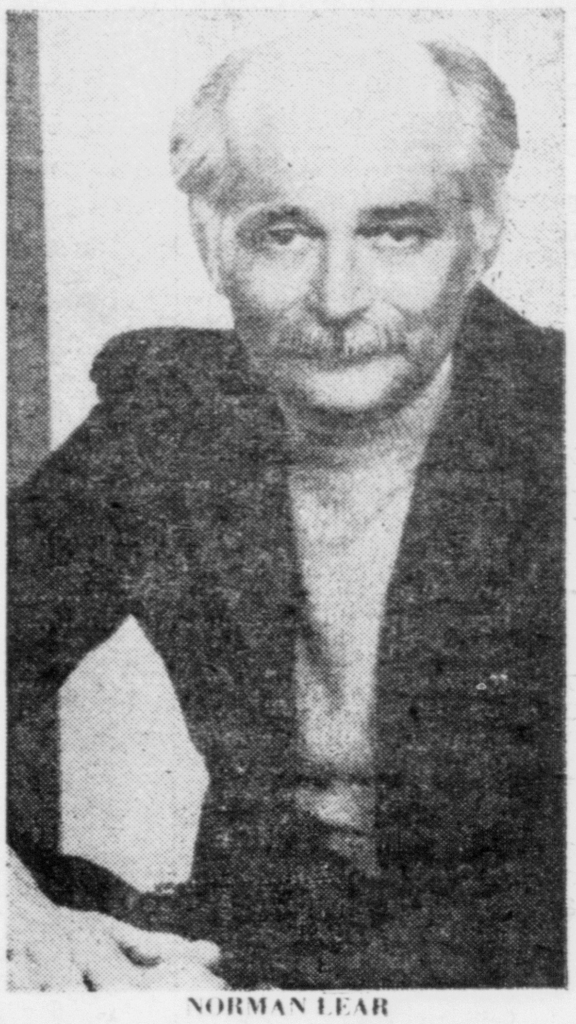
Lear's shows ("All in the Family," "Maude," "Sanford and Son" and on and on) and the MTM stable ("Mary Tyler Moore," "Bob Newhart," "Rhoda") pretty well have the TV situation comedy field wrapped up.

Lear, of course, is actively involved in his productions but Mary Tyler Moore isn't. In fact, she thinks the name of her company — MTM — should be changed.

"I am really not active in the other shows at all," she says. "Oh, once in a while Grant asks my advice on casting but never anything more than that."

GRANT IS HER husband. Grant Tinker, who runs the whole operation. And Mary thinks the company should use his initials — GAT — instead of hers.

MARY TYLER MOORE



NORMAN LEAR

"But he's always been such a private person," she says, "that he never even puts his name on things. I think he should."

Her main interest, professionally, is her own show and her own career. The show is well in hand, at the moment but things are happening to her career. CBS wants her to do a special and she's thinking about it seriously.

"I'm mulling it over," she says. "I'd like to do it but only if I can come up with an idea that's workable and different. I wouldn't want to do the same old thing."

Just in case it happens, however, she's getting ready. She's taking up jazz dancing. She's always been a dancer and has been keeping up her ballet studies over the years, but jazz dancing — which is commercial — is new to her.

Her own show rolls along, still one of the best-written and best-acted of all TV's comedy efforts. She enjoys it just as much now as she ever did and thinks (and hopes) it can last a few more years.

SHE SAYS THE loss of Rhoda (Valerie Harper) to her own show left a void. But, she says, they are not making any conscious effort to fill it.

"Whenever somebody new comes on and the chemistry is good," she says, "our antenna goes up. Then we write some more episodes for that person. We have two new girls this year — Barbara Colby, who played the hooker I was in jail with, is one. And Sheree North, who plays an old-time band singer, is now a semi-regular as Ed Asner's girl friend."

Could you please tell me about the Smothers Brothers? Also, where could I write to them? Please print their pictures. Thank you.

K.C.

Tom and Dick Smothers were born in New York City and they spent their early years in the Philippines. They went to high school in Redondo Beach, Calif. and while there, they developed a strong interest in music. Later, they attended San Jose State College.

The Smothers Brothers soon gained popularity and they were booked at a series of nightclubs and college concerts all across the country. They next starred in the CBS "Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" for three seasons, until the show was cancelled in the spring of 1969 (due to a fiery dispute over censorship rights). Since that time, they have appeared in a summer replacement series for ABC called "The Smothers Brothers Summer Show."

Tom and Dick are now performing in nightclubs, on college campuses and on television. NBC's new "Smothers Brothers Show" marks their return to network TV, with a weekly satire and variety series. You can write to Tom and Dick in care of NBC Press Dept., National Broadcasting Co., 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10020.

In the film, "The Impossible Years," who played the role of the girl who fell in love with Chad Everett? Who were the other stars featured in the movie?

P.L.

That actress was Christina Ferrare. David Niven played her father and Lola Albright portrayed her mother in the 1968 film.

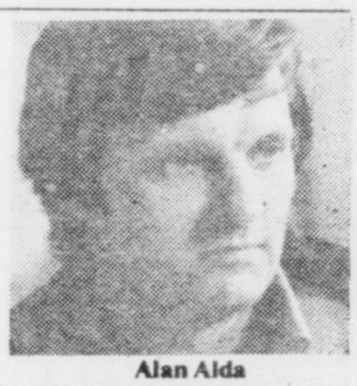
Please tell me as much as possible about Alan Alda who plays Hawkeye on the television series "M*A*S*H." Where can I write to him? Please include a picture of him.

J.R.



Alan Alda

Alan made his film debut in "Gone Are the Days" and he later appeared in "The Moonshine War," "Jenny," "The Mephisto Waltz," "The Paper Lion" and the critically acclaimed study of prison life, "The Glass House."

You can write to Alan in care of CBS Television Network, Press Information, 51 West 52nd Street, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Everything Nice About Dining Out

Restaurant of the Week

Jake's Restaurant

Matt Baines, manager of the Jake's restaurant in Schaumburg, invites you to the grand opening celebration which begins tomorrow. The newest Jake's, decorated in the style of an old English pub, has taken the best from all its restaurants, combining good food and a more diversified menu with an interesting decor.

You'll be delighted when your waitress brings you a large wooden pizza board menu which makes for easy reading. Jake's, well known for its thin-crust pizza made with the finest quality cheeses, also takes pride in its fine pasta dishes. There's a wide variety of sandwiches served with your choice of cottage fries, German potato salad, baked beans or apple sauce. Jake's features a crock for two of onion soup topped with a thick layer of crusted cheese and large croutons.

Jake's is great for businessmen's lunches, family dinners or late-night snacks. Jake's offers complete lunch and dinner menus, a large bar at which to relax, carry-outs, delivery service beginning at 4 p.m., and lots of free parking.

Jake's hours are 11 a.m. until 1 a.m. Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. until 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday and from 4 p.m. until 1 a.m. on Sunday.

Located at 829 Higgins Road, Jake's is in the Churchill Square Shopping Center, Schaumburg. Phone 884-1454 for delivery or carry-out service.

Here Korchnoi "sacs" the queen

Shelby Lyman on chess

Korchnoi still one of the best

The recent Oxford University Press paperback, "Karpov-Korchnoi 1974," by W.R. Hartston and R.D. Keene ($3.95) is a worthy reminder of the exigencies of world championship chess for those who savored the battles Bobby Fischer had with Boris Spassky in Reykjavik.

Korchnoi, at 44, still surely one of the great combatants of all time, subjects Karpov to a harrowing battle. Though Anatoly Karpov emerges the winner and official challenger to Fischer, it is easy to regard Korchnoi as the hero for his never-say-die spirit. His ability to mount an attack under most any condition is matched only by Karpov's coolness and ingeniousness in defense.

The book itself begins with succinct and at times fascinating descriptions of the players, their style and history. It presents the games at a level which is more readable and relevant than most comparative efforts. The reader is spared the usual labyrinths of variations. But the excitement of the match and the valor of the players is skillfully conveyed, along with many technical points about grandmaster chess.

An added bonus for many—though a nuisance to some—is the rendering of all games in algebraic notation, rather than the descriptive notation usually used in the U.S. The terse but very good explication of the algebraic system given in a one page frontispiece should quickly dispel all mysteries of that system for the reader who wishes to make a modest effort.

For those who would like a last look at Korchnoi for the nonce (Karpor will soon play Fischer, we hope), here is a characteristic performance by the Leningrad grandmaster. Played in 1967, this game was presented by the authors to illustrate his style.

IN OUR first position Korchnoi, black, has just made an astounding move! He has played the unexpected 20 . . . P-R4. This advance of a protecting pawn in front of the black king entailed great risk. But in the words of the authors, "the psychological impact of the sudden transformation of a defensive posture into an aggressive one must have been immense."

The following moves then occurred: 21. R-KB1, Q-N5; 22. N-K2, Q-B5; 23. P-B3, P-KN3; 24. R(3)-B3, N-N2; 25. P-QN3, Q-R3; 26. N-N3, P-R5; 27. N-K4, N-B4; 28. Q-B4, QxP; 29. B-B5, Q-K7; 30. R(3)-B2, Q-Q6; 31. R(2)-B3, Q-K7; 32. R(3)-B2, Q-Q6; 33. R(2)-Q2?

"Typically, Korchnoi seizes an extra pawn, relying on his centralized pieces and his rapid calculating ability to beat off the onslaught of the massed white army. With both players short of time the tension becomes acute, the authors write.

DIAGRAM 2 shows the position reached.

Here Korchnoi plays 33 . . . QxR(2)! ". . . A spectacular positional queen sacrifice which definitely turns the game in black's favor."

The game concluded with 34. NxQ, BxB; 35. N-K4, B-K6; 36. N-B6 check, K-N2; 37. Q-QB4, R(2)-Q1; 38. N-N4, B-N3; 39. N-B2, BxN; 40. RxB, N-K6, resigns. There is no defense to 41. R-Q8 check.

White's 39th move was obviously a blunder, but black already had the favorable position.

A good book and a useful background for those who expect to see a Fischer-Karpov match.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The ol' king or jack gambit

Some old timers will remember Frank Stockton's story, "Lady or the Tiger?" The reader is left wih an impossible problem to solve.

Today's hand was presented as an example of an impossible bridge problem. South wins the first heart and cashes his ace and king of diamonds. His next play is the deuce of spades. West follows low. Which spade should he play from dummy? If either opponent holds both the ace and queen it makes no difference. If the honors are split, the correct guess allows South to make five no trump. The wrong guess finds South in the ashcan.

We have taken advantage of you readers by carefully showing question marks in place of the East-West spades, but we can assure you that there is a correct play here.

The correct play is to play the jack or 10. The reason for this is that some West players would put up the ace if they held it, on the theory that South held just two diamonds and one spade. Not much percentage since most defenders would figure out South's exact distribution, by assuming that with 6-4-2-1 South would have bid three clubs, not two no trump at his third turn. While with five hearts and five clubs his third call would have been three hearts.

However, any slight percentage is worthwhile. South knows that west, would not play the queen of spades unless he hold it as a singleton.

Turn-of-century lamps find home at Farrell's

Wooden molds were made to copy the shades and these were turned over to a master craftsman in stained glass who ever since has been making Tiffany-type lamps for Farrell's, more than 1000 altogether.

Farrell's spends $250 to $350 per shade. Approximately 250 new ones are turned out each year in 14 different designs and countless variations of glass. The lampmaker says that no two shades are exactly alike.

Tiffany lamps, a symbol that brings to mind turn-of-the-century player pianos, straw brimmers, bentwood chairs and the old-fashioned soda fountain, are used exclusively in the 90-plus Farrell Ice Cream Parlour Restaurants across the nation.

When Farrell's first opened 11 years ago, actual Tiffanies hung in the original store in Portland, Ore. But as the supply of originals dwindled, owner Bob Farrell decided to have reproductions made.

Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour is in the Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg.

What the world needs is a little more comedy

In "Philadelphia Story," Katharine Hepburn says: "Oh, we're going to talk about me, are we? Goody!"

That's not the way it works out in life. In life, Katharine Hepburn is about as eager to talk about herself as clams are eager to whistle "Dixie."

Katharine Hepburn

Not that she's inexpressive. Once she decides to talk, the words flow swiftly and musically in run-on sentences, faster and with a greater intensity than the measured, cultured rhythms that are familiar from her screen characterizations.

Seated on a stool in her dressing van during the filming of "Love Among the Ruins," James Costigan's romantic comedy that stars her with Laurence Olivier for the first time, she propped her feet up on a low shelf, and agreed to talk — provided that the tape recorder was turned off.

The subject she was ready to talk about was the genesis of "Love Among the Ruins," which airs as an "ABC Theatre" presentation, under the direction of George Cukor.

"I especially wanted to do this screenplay because I thought it would be fun to do something silly instead of pompous — the world is in such an agonizing state that the story type of entertainment is bound to come back.

"There are very few comedies nowadays," she said, "but they'll come back — they have to as things get worse. It's like the early '30s when I started — comedy is a necessity in hard times, don't you think? And your sense of humor must survive, musn't it? No matter what, you must recognize the necessity of laughter.

Your chance to see 'Treasures of Past'

Things to do

The 18th semiannual Pheasant Run Antique Show runs this weekend at the Pheasant Run Lodge in St. Charles. The theme is "Treasures of the Past."

Room settings of early American and period furniture will be highlighted by a tilt-top table with a two foot diameter top made of Sevres porcelain with eight hand-painted portraits of Marie Antoinette and Louis XVI. The base of the table is of rosewood.

An exhibit of early American furniture includes an 1850 pine-jelly cabinet, an early pie safe and a Norwegian immigrant's trunk with original paint in tiger-hide design.

Complementing the room settings will be a large collection of early lighting devices. The oldest and rarest piece is a floor cresset which was used in the early 1500s to hold burning wood knots.

The show opens daily at noon, closing at 10 p.m. today and 6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1.75.

Model trains chugging along

Recession or not, these hobbyists still traveling, spending heavily

by LUISA GINNETTI

Ask Jim Lenahan anything about trains and you'll get an enthusiastic dissertation even Casey Jones would appreciate.

He'll start with his childhood memories of trips between Chicago and New Jersey aboard the Pennsylvania R.R.'s Broadway Limited or Trailblazer and how he would stay awake the entire time so not to miss the sights and sounds along the route.

Then he'll talk of a recent trip aboard a locomotive drawn train when he again bypassed sleep because he was fascinated by the sights of the 20-hour journey.

BUT LENAHAN'S knowledge of trains extends far beyond boyhood memories of cross-country junkets. As owner of The Roundhouse, a model-train hobby shop stocked with every locomotive need from transformers to trestles, Lenahan has built up a technical background in railroading that rivals an encyclopedia.

'There are more modelers per square mile . . . from Jefferson Park west to Palatine . . . than anywhere else in the country.'

—Jim Lenahan

Now in its fifth year of business at 1272 Miner St., Des Plaines, Lenahan said his part-time enterprise "started on a shoestring" with an investment of only $2,000. The Roundhouse, named after the buildings that were used to house steam locomotives for light maintenance or overnight indoor parking, has since become such a booming venture it draws customers from as far away as Milwaukee, Wis., and South Bend., Ind.

And as Lenahan explains it, this widespread customer appeal is no accident.

"I spent two years surveying the model-train market before starting this business," Lenahan said. "I found out that there are more modelers per square mile in the area from Jefferson Park west to Palatine along the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks than anywhere else in the country."

The shop owner said it is not unusual for modelers to drive 50 miles to come to the store and he estimates that 30 per cent of his clientele is made up of persons who live at least that far away.

LENAHAN, a 39-year-old manufacturing consultant from Buffalo Grove, said 98 per cent of his business involves adults.

"We have almost no teen sales during the year," Lenahan siad. "exactness of detail and quality of workmanship are important to adults and that's what we concentrate on. The difference between that and the kids' toy-train market is price."

"The average modeler (according to a national survey) is 31 years old with an average income of $18,500, so when young people are eliminated from the survey you can see that the model-train hobbier is someone who can well afford it," he said.

Lenahan said sales have been affected somewhat by the struggling economy, but while receipts are slightly down, the number of persons patronizing the store has never been higher.

"It's not uncommon for someone who's been unemployed for six months to come into the store, spend $200 and literally take food from his kids' mouths to start the hobby simply because he has nothing else to do," Lenahan said. "It happens almost every week and it seems the tougher things get and the more idle time people have, the more willing they are to spend money on hobbies."

LENAHAN, who dresses in railroad overalls and cap while working in the shop (an admitted promotional grimmick), describes himself as an introvert with a technical background in trains, which helps his business.

He has cataloged his model train knowledge in a book on the hobby which includes information on all types of model railroad cars and tips to buyers on what to look for to get the best deals and best models.

Lenahan also is a licensed pilot but only travels by air when time becomes his dictator. He still prefers riding trains to any other form of long-distance transportation.

"I'm not much different than when I was a kid and I think at 39 I'm probably a bigger nut on trains than ever."

This 'award' show has a new twist

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — "We need another awards show like we need a hole in the head," said the producer of yet another presentation show — the first annual People's Choice Awards.

He is Robert Stivers who employed the A.C. Nielsen Co. of video ratings fame to poll "more than 5,000 Americans" to determine who are the most popular movie and television performers.

Nielsen also asked which was the favorite movie of 1974 and what were the most popular television series.

THE RESULTS will be seen March 4 via CBS on a live two-hour special with Richard Crenna as host and featuring most of the winners.

Appearing as presenters will be Bob Hope, Charles Bronson, Ann-Margret, Faye Dunaway and Sammy Davis.

There are 14 categories in all: Favorite movie, actor and actress, favorite television comedy, drama, variety show, male performer and female performer.

One favorite athlete of the year will be honored. There are three music awards, male and female performers and group. Finally there are two favorite all-around performers in any field.

"We think we are combining the best of the Oscars and the Emmys," said Stivers.

"I THINK THERE is room somewhere for the public to express itself in awards. And people will be surprised at how much public opinion differs with television ratings and the Emmys and Oscars.

"It's time people who buy records and movie tickets and watch television had a voice in an awards show.

"Our contract specified that the number polled would be at least five times as large as the Nielsen ratings for TV.

Sammy Davis

"Individuals had to have seen at least two movies in the past six months. And the demographics were all observed as to age, suburban, urban, ethnic groups and all the rest.

"We didn't confuse anyone by asking for best supporting performances. We simply asked who were the favorites."

THE TOP THREE athletes named were Billie Jean King, Joe Namath and Hank Aaron, one of whom will win The People's Choice Award. In the musical group category the three finalists are the Osmond Brothers, Tony Orlando and Dawn and Chicago.

Stivers admits there are too many awards shows. And some of the television ratings of these programs are low; i.e. the recent Golden Globes.

Billie Jean King

He is aware he is competing with nine other ballyhooed awards shows, among them the Oscars, Emmys, Golden Globes, Grammys, Tonys, country music awards, Entertainment Hall of Fame, Las Vegas show girls, American Guild of Variety Artists.

"WE FEEL OUR People's Choice Awards are different because they are not the 'best' but simply the 'favorites' of the people."

Stivers was asked how he would avoid repetition each year. If, say, John Wayne is the favorite of the people polled in 1974, what's to prevent him from remaining the people's choice again in 1975 and in perpetuity?

"We thought about that," Stivers said. "The potential winners are restricted to the specific television season."

Foreign actresses dominate Oscar awards? Not this year

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's difficult to believe but foreign beauties have won more Academy Awards than American-born actresses.

The score: Foreigners 25, Americans 22.

There have been 46 years of awards, but in 1968 Katharine Hepburn and Barbra Streisand tied for best actress.

No foreign actress is a truly hot prospect for the 1974 award.

Norway's Liv Ullmann, a native of Tokyo, would be a certainty for nomination had her film, "Scenes from a Marriage," not been disqualified by unanimous rule of the academy board because it had been shown first on Swedish television in 1973.

It looks like an All-American race for the first time in many years.

LEADING prospects are Gena Rowlands ("A Woman Under the Influence"), Valerie Perrine ("Lenny"), Faye Dunaway ("Chinatown"), Ellen Burstyn ("Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore") and Diahann Carroll ("Claudine").

Perhaps academy members were impressed in the past by exotic actresses. Maybe it is because fewer American movies provide juicy parts for actresses than in the old days.

Even among multiple winners the foreign-born actresses dominate the domestic leading ladies.

Only Katharine Hepburn and Bette Davis among Americans have captured more than a single Oscar; three for Hepburn, two for Davis.

These foreign-born stars have won two apiece: Elizabeth Taylor and Glenda Jackson, both of England; Vivien Leigh, of Darjeeling, India; Ingrid Bergman, a native of Sweden; Olivia De Havilland, born in Tokyo, and Luise Rainer of Vienna, who won two in a row back in 1963-37.

10-center honors bargaining

A 10-cent commemorative stamp honoring collective bargaining will be released March 13 by the U.S. Postal Service. First-day ceremonies will be in Washington, D.C.

The adhesive, marking the social force which stabilized labor-managment relations in the U.S., was designed by Robert Hallock of Newton, Conn. Hallock also designed the 1974 Veterans of Foreign Wars commemorative and the Stone Mountain issue of 1970.

It will be printed on the Andreotti gravure press with 50 stamps to a pane and four plate numbers.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should address their requests to Collective Bargaining Stamp, Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013 enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

A SPECIAL CACHET marking the 70th wedding anniversary of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Anna Eleanor Roosevelt will be issued March 17 by the FDR Philatelic Society.

The marriage took place on that date in 1905 because, as Eleanor recalled, "This was the date my Uncle Ted (President Theodore Roosevelt) was coming up to New York to review the St. Patrick's Day Parade. And he decided he wished to give me away."

The special cover will be franked with one 5-cent Roosevelt Memorial issue (Scott No. 933) and one 5-cent Eleanor Roosevelt adhesive (No. 1236). It will be canceled March 17 at Hyde Park, N.Y.

Stamp notes
by Bernadine M. Rechner

Covers are available for $1 each from the FDR Philatelic Society, Box 150-W, Clinton Corners, NY 12514. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped, No. 10 (long) envelope for their return.

THE IRISH POST Office will mark International Women's Year March 24 with the release of a commemorative stamp in two denominations, 8p and 15p.

Requests for first day cancellations should go to the Dept. of Posts and Telegraph, General Post Office, Dublin 1, Ireland. Send your remittance, to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, by international bank draft. I would suggest requesting enough postage (26 cents per half-ounce) to bring the covers back by air mail.

THE CANADA POST Office Monday will release four envelopes and two post cards, both in 6- and 8-cent denominations.

The envelopes, in personal and business sizes, are available in mint condition for 11 cents each. Postcards are 10 cents each. Your requests should go to The Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., Canada, K1A 0b5 with remittance in Canadian funds via international bank draft.

Half-dollars cite Arkansas

The 100th anniversary of the admission of Arkansas to the Union brought about the creation of two commemorative half-dollars with distinctly different obverses (fronts). Two Acts of Congress, one dated May 14, 1934 and a second dated June 26, 1936, were necessary to bring about this unusual situation.

Issue number one displays the accolated heads of an Indian Chief of 1836 wearing a feathered headdress, and the capped head of an American girl of 1936. The cap bears the word LIBERTY above an olive branch. Below the device is ARKANSAS CENTENNIAL and 1836-1936 appears in the field.

The reverse, which was retained for the second issue, displays an eagle with outstretched wings looking to the right. In its beak the eagle carries a scroll bearing the mottoes "IN GOD WE TRUST" and "E PLURIBUS UNUM." Directly above the eagle are three stars and the word ARKANSAS with one star above.

Collecting coins
by Mort Reed

Surrounding the four stars and name is an arch depicting the upper portion of a diamond studded with 13 stars. The diamond symbol is adapted from the state flag.

THE THREE STARS represent the three flags which have flown over Arkansas and also signify that Arkansas was the third state created from territory of the Louisiana Purchase. The single star represents the participation of the state in the Confederacy.

Edward Everette Burr is credited with creating both sides of the original issue. Henry Kreiss designed the second obverse.

All three mints, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Denver, struck the first Arkansas commemorative from 1935 through 1939. They were sold by distributors at $8.75 for a set of three, one from each mint.

The second commemorative, issued in 1936, only bore the bust of Sen. Joseph T. Robinson, facing right. Around the circumference was the inscription ARKANSAS CENTENNIAL 1836-1936. To the left in small letters, the word LIBERTY, and to the right in two lines, Joseph T.-Robinson.

The question of the obverse and reverse of this issue is of particular interest, since it is usually understood that a portrait is on the obverse. But in this instance, the portrait of Robinson is officially the reverse.

The market values for a set of three Type I runs from $125 to $250 for issues between 1935 and 1938. A set of three for 1939 is valued at $800.

Yeoman's A Guide Book of United States Coins, the Red Book, lists the 1936 Type II at roughly $65 in uncirculated condition.
